A SWEEPING WELCOME

Ald. Richard Stewart welcomed curlers to the third annual Kelowna summer mixed bonspiel today before taking a crack at the game himself.

He handled the sweeping chores while defending champion Peewee Quintal of St. Albert, Alta. threw out the first rock. A total of 32 rinks are entered in the bonspiel being held at the Memorial Arena. The curling ends Saturday and will be followed by a banquet and dance at the arena. —(Courier Photo)

Groceries Still Hit By Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP)—Locked-out grocery clerks voted 91 per cent Tuesday night in favor of returning to work on 103 British Columbia Lower Mainland supermarkets, but they will not cross picket lines set up by meatcutters who rejected similar contract offers Monday.

The differing votes by the two unions left possible reopening of the supermarkets, closed since early June, clouded in confusion and inter-union bitterness.

The Retail Food and Drug Clerks Union accepted a new contract by a vote of 1,415 to 139. On Monday, the 800 meatcutters rejected a contract that had been approved by the union executive.

Store officials had planned to reopen the supermarkets sometime this week, when tentative approval was given to the contracts by executives of both unions.

In other developments on the B.C. labor scene, striking telephone workers picketed Vancouver International Airport in suburban Richmond Tuesday and delayed aircraft departures for 45 minutes.

In a lengthy strike by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, the B.C. Federation of Labor announced Tuesday it is intensifying its boycott against products of Imperial Oil, one of six major refineries involved in the wage dispute.

Meanwhile, negotiators for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union have recommended rejection of a federal conciliation report that offered a guaranteed work week and a round-the-clock port operation in B.C.

All His Hopes Groundless

VICTORIA (CP)—He huffed, puffed and pedaled furiously, but Paul Morcovescu could not get his pedal-powered flying machine off the ground.

After five attempts to launch his home-made pedal plane Tuesday, the 46-year-old welder who built the 142-pound craft during the last two years in his basement was disappointed, but refused to give up hope.

"I'll take me off or I'll take it off," Mr. Morcovescu said after his fifth unsuccessful try. The fragile craft has only enough room for the pilot who must travel in stretched-out position while pedaling with both feet and hands. The craft is 20 feet long and has a wing span of 45 feet.

But if each attempt Tuesday the craft rolled down the slopes of a private airstrip without gathering enough speed to fly. On one occasion, it narrowly missed a head-on collision with some bushes.

Finally a chain gear began slipping, and Mr. Morcovescu had to postpone his attempts to fly the world's first pedal-powered plane in favor of some repairs and "further minor adjustments."

Israelis Hunt Arab Bombers

By Reuters
Israeli police today rounded up about 60 Arabs from the Tel Aviv Jaffa area after a man was killed and another badly wounded by a dawn bomb explosion, a police spokesman said.

The explosive charge, weighing an estimated two pounds, was wrapped in a parcel and hidden in bushes a few yards from a bus stop on a busy road linking Tel Aviv with Haifa, the spokesman said.

Israeli warplanes streaked across the Suez canal and the River Jordan Tuesday to knock out Egyptian gun emplacements and strike at Arab command bases inside Jordan.

The raid over the canal, the second since Sunday and only the second air attack on Egyptian military installations since the 1967 war, crippled a number of gun sites, an Israeli military spokesman said.

Gas Warfare For Review

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense officials are predicting a top-level government review of U.S. gas warfare projects will lead to some policy changes and tighter supervision of the controversial program.

The military evaluation of the National Security Council study came after the defense department announced Tuesday that what it said was a previously planned removal of lethal chemical agents from Okinawa would be speeded up.

MPs Up In Arms At Muzzling Bid

APOLLO THEME

Just No Place Like Home...

HOUSTON (AP)—Rested after a long sleep and yearning for the good earth, Apollo 11's moon explorers neared the half-way point of their homeward journey today, streaking on a perfect course toward a Thursday landing in the Pacific.

The spacemen were allowed to sleep past noon, resting for the critical re-entry and landing.

They awakened at 12:30 p.m. EDT, with their spaceship racing along at 3,663 miles an hour, 131,268 miles from earth.

Apollo 11 was on such an accurate course a small engine correction scheduled today was cancelled.

"No matter where you travel, it's nice to get home," Edwin Aldrin said as the astronauts beamed a television picture of earth from more than 180,000 miles away Tuesday night.

"It's getting appreciably larger now," said Michael Collins. "It's looking more like a world."

And, looking ahead to splashdown, Apollo 11 commander Neil Armstrong asked about the weather in the recovery area.

"It looks real good out there," mission control told him. "The forecast is for scattered clouds at 3,000 feet and a visibility of 10 miles. So it looks real good for recovery."

Apollo 11 is to land at 12:49 p.m. EDT Thursday about 1,200 miles southwest of Hawaii.

STEER ONTO PATH
The astronauts set their course Tuesday by firing a short engine burst to steer onto a precise path intended to land them near the aircraft carrier Hornet. They ended their historic exploration of the moon early Tuesday by shooting themselves out of lunar orbit and gradually gained speed as they raced deeper into the grip of earth's gravity.

The TV show was the highlight of an otherwise quiet day. It started like a comedy show. When a picture of the moon flashed on the monitor in mission control, the capsule communicator, astronaut Charles Duke, commented: "We see the earth in the centre of the screen."

After a pause, Aldrin corrected him with: "Believe that's where we just came from."

"It is, huh? Well I'm really looking at a bad, at a bad screen here," Duke said. "Stand by one. Hey, you're right!"

Later, when a picture of the earth was shown, Duke said: "I refuse to bite on this one. You tell us."

"You'll have some fun at the press conference on this shift," Collins kidded him.

"It's 2:30 a.m.," Duke countered. "Everybody'll be asleep. I'm gonna sneak off through the back way."

Armstrong showed viewers two sealed boxes in which are packed precious bits of soil and rock that he and Aldrin collected during their momentous two-hour walk on the moon Sunday.

"We know there's a lot of scientists from a number of countries standing by to see these lunar samples and we thought you'd be interested in seeing that they really are here," he said.

Pollution Hits B.C. Water Fowl

VANCOUVER (CP)—A zoology professor at the University of British Columbia said Tuesday pesticide pollution and lack of nesting and feeding grounds are two major causes of the lessening number of fowl in the Lower Mainland area.

Speaker Shows A Little Strain

Speaker Lamoureux, usually a model of understatement and tact, spoke with some strain.

Mr. Howard said he wished the Speaker had some influence in the cabinet. If the Liberals wanted to operate by the law of the jungle, the opposition would try to accommodate them.

Outside the House, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the closure move will destroy "the atmosphere of co-operation which has existed here for almost a year."

A rule to be effective had to be accepted by all MPs.

Prime Minister Trudeau, speaking to reporters, said Parliament had become in the popular view an irrelevant place where people talked and talked and did nothing. The rules change would restore Parliament's relevancy in the public eye.

"We can't just talk all year round," he said.

In the evening, 35 students gathered outside Parliament to demonstrate against rule 75C.

Mr. Macdonald said the debate—in its 10th day today—often if it didn't produce a compromise, might pave the way for amendments to the controversial proposed rule in the future.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the opposition is still prepared to negotiate. The opposition wanted an over-all limitation of 30 days to ensure that public opinion would have time to exhibit itself on any legislative issue. However, the government had rejected this and used a bulldozer rather than reason.

"We will meet them on their battleground," he said.

"If the hearing results in a finding of no serious fault on Senator Kennedy's part, his driver's licence will be reinstated," McLaughlin said.

COULD BE REVOKED
"But if the hearing confirms the preliminary finding of serious fault, the licence suspension will be changed to a revocation which, by law, must remain in effect for at least six months."

McLaughlin's announcement was released as Police Chief Dominic J. Arena was telling reporters here that he has no evidence to support any charges against Kennedy other than leaving the scene of an accident.

"This is the case and the only case I have," Arena said at a news conference.

B.C.'s Political Parties Head Out On Voter Hunt

VANCOUVER (CP)—Leaders of British Columbia's three major political parties prepared to hit the campaign trail Tuesday in the wake of Premier W. A. C. Bennett's announcement of an Aug. 27 provincial election.

Mr. Bennett's plans for the next week were not immediately available and Social Credit spokesmen said it would be at least a week before his itinerary becomes available.

The premier is, however, scheduled to travel to his hometown of Kelowna Aug. 1, where the South Okanagan Social Credit Constituency Association has scheduled a nomination meeting on the 17th anniversary of the party's accession to power in B.C.

The following day, the 68-year-old premier travels 32 miles north to Vernon to launch a giant 17th birthday celebration that is expected to attract party supporters from across the province.

The birthday bash was scheduled before the premier announced the election date. Similar rallies have been held by Social Credit each August for the past few years.

It will be the 10th time Premier Bennett has been nominated in South Okanagan since he entered provincial politics 28 years ago. He was chosen three times as Tory candidate and six as Social Credit.

Opposition Leader Tom Berger of the New Democratic Party leaves Friday for Kamloops, where the NDP is slated to nominate a candidate to oppose incumbent P. A. (Flying Phil) Gagliardi, former highways minister.

Mr. Berger told a news conference Tuesday the premier is trying to scare the people away from the NDP by ranting about socialism and Marxism, while at the same time boasting about the accomplishments of B.C. Hydro, B.C. Ferries and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway—all of which became Crown corporations during the Bennett years.

"The premier can huff and puff all he wants but there is a new generation that's not going to decide the election on the labels of the past," said the 36-year-old NDP leader.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said he also plans to leave Friday for campaigning in the Kamloops area. And in an interview, Dr. McGeer said there is no way the Liberals would form a coalition with either party in the event of a minority government situation after the election.

Meanwhile, it was announced in Ottawa Tuesday night the Grits will be getting some election help in the form of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and at least three federal cabinet ministers.

Tom Finklestein, president of the Kelowna Liberal Association, said today his party knew the election was coming "before Dec. 15" and while they regard it as a "poor time to hold an election" they are ready.

A Liberal executive meeting was scheduled for later today to set a date for a nominating meeting.

Indications are for a full-scale Liberal campaign this year with new leader Dr. Pat McGeer, (Vancouver Point Grey) scheduled to bolster local support with "more than one appearance in the riding."

Mr. Finklestein, who said his party will start election activity in earnest after the Apollo splashdown Thursday, regards the premier's attempt to fight the campaign on capitalism versus Marxism Communism as "hogwash."

"Neither system exists anywhere in the world today except in some segments of the southern United States and Rhodesia, and perhaps in China but this we don't know," Finklestein said.

Mr. Finklestein was commenting on Premier W. A. C. Bennett's attack on "disguised communism" and "professional organizers" in the New Democratic Party of B.C.

The premier, who is expected to obtain re-nomination in the South Okanagan riding unopposed, made the attack, one of the harshest he has ever levelled on B.C. socialists, during a press conference Tuesday.

Secrets meet Aug. 1 in the Pandosy Street, Elks' Hall, Kelowna, to nominate, and E. P. (Ted) Thorburn, president of the South Okanagan Group said "at present there are no opposing candidates for the nomination."

He added he does not anticipate any.

Spy Swap In Offing?

LONDON (Reuters)—Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky called at the foreign office for the sixth time in a week today as the British press continued to speculate that British university instructor Gerald Brooke, now being held in Russia, might be exchanged for convicted spies Peter and Helen Kroger.

British officials have said that Britain is negotiating with Russia to avert a second trial for Brooke, who is serving the last year of a five-year sentence for anti-Soviet activities.

The officials declined to comment on mounting speculation that the Krogers would be exchanged for Brooke.

The Krogers, who are American citizens, were sentenced to 20 years in a British prison early in 1961 for passing British naval secrets to the Russians.

All six meetings during the last week took place between Sir Denis Greenhill, permanent undersecretary at the foreign office, OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today announced a $6,000,000 grant to assist road construction this year in the Atlantic provinces.

The announcement, made jointly by the regional expansion and transport departments, said the assistance will be shared equally by Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Importers Seizing Market Of Lower-Grade Beef Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — As Canada's beef producers concentrate on providing high-priced steaks and roasts, Australian and New Zealand imports are rapidly moving into the market for the lower-grade cuts.

Imports of New Zealand fresh or frozen boneless beef increased from $37,000 worth in January to $1,273,000 in May, say Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures.

In the same period, imports from Australia increased from $58,000 worth to $823,000, with a peak of $942,000 in April. New Zealand shipped 79,400 pounds in January and 3,070,800 pounds in May.

However, it is believed unlikely these increased imports will adversely affect Canadian producers.

Spokesmen for the Australian and New Zealand High Commissions say most of it is frozen boneless beef, or manufactured meat that is canned or used in sausages and hamburger.

They say Canadian producers have, on the whole, neglected the growing market for these cheap types of meats, concentrating instead on fresh high-quality beef.

Wilson Freeman, economist for the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said Tuesday Canadian producers have not been supplying the requirements of the market, either in fresh or manufactured beef.

Agriculture resources "seem to have gone into the wrong channels," he said, creating a scarcity of beef and surpluses in wheat and dairy products.

Mr. Freeman estimates beef imports from Australia and New Zealand, the two leading foreign sources of beef for Canada, will be no more than seven per cent of beef sold in Canada this year.

If high beef prices continue, however, these countries might begin to export fresh cuts to Canada.

The Australian and New Zealand imports have only made a limited appearance in Ottawa grocery stores so far. One chain store, experimenting with small amounts of New Zealand beef, reports satisfactory sales.

It is selling imported frozen boneless sirloin butts at 50 cent a pound less than Canadian fresh cuts and reports that a fair number of customers prefer economy to the loss in quality with frozen meats.

The tariff rate on beef imports is three cents a pound.

Spanish Prince Informed He's Chosen To Be King

MADRID (AP) — A parliamentary delegation called on Prince Juan Carlos de Bourbon today to notify him he had been chosen Spain's future king and heir to Generalissimo Franco's title of head of state.

The delegation visited Zarzuela Palace to inform the 31-year-old grandson of King Alfonso XII that the Cortes elected him heir to the throne Tuesday night. The post makes him chief of state when Franco retires, becomes incapacitated or dies.

As king, however, he will have severely limited power rather than the virtual blank cheque Franco has enjoyed since he led the revolution that overthrew the Spanish Republic in 1939.

The government will be run by a premier whom the king must choose from nominees of the Franco-picked Council of the Realm, and the premier can be removed only on recommendation of the council.

Franco nominated the prince to be his successor during an extraordinary session of the Cortes. The 553-member parliament promptly ratified the nomination by a vote of 491 to 19. Nine members abstained and 34 were absent.

The generalissimo in effect quashed speculation that he might resign soon. He told the Cortes that he would keep Juan Carlos by his side "to perfect his knowledge of national problems."

Franco's elevation of Juan Carlos appeared to put an end to any chance at the throne for the prince's father, Don Juan, the 56-year-old Count of Barcelo-

Mill Planned At Princeton

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northwood Mills Ltd. announced today that construction will start immediately on a $3,000,000 sawmill at Princeton, B.C.

Northwood said the mill will have a capacity of 35,000,000 board feet of lumber a year.

The company said the project had been made possible by terms of the federal Area Development Act. Princeton is included in the Okanagan area, which has benefited from federal subsidies designed to help designated depressed areas.

Northwood's western pines division now operates a mill at Princeton that cuts 37,000,000 feet annually and employs 109, plus loggers.

The new mill will provide 128 new jobs when completed in September, 1970, the company said.

Northwood Mills is a member of the Noranda group of companies.

TODAY'S STOCK QUOTATIONS

TORONTO (CP) — Industries fell to their lowest level since last September in mid-morning sliding today as the June-July slump continued on the Toronto stock market.

The industrial index lost .77 to 170.17.

The market fell sharply Tuesday when an expected Apollo 11 rally failed to materialize.

The western oil index, which fell 11.8 Tuesday, was down 4.30 to 234.79.

Asamara lost 2 1/2 to 24, Dome Petroleum 1 1/2 to 24, Pacific Petroleum 1 1/2 to 24 and Hudson's Bay Oil 1 1/2 to 24.

A lack of news about drilling in Alaska and the Canadian Arctic appears to be depressing oil issues.

Real estate issues were weak in industrial components. Peel-Elder fell 2 1/2 to 27 1/2, Revenue 30 cents to $3.85 and Bramalea 7 1/2 to 7 1/2.

Steel also was lower. Steelco was down 1/4 to 21 1/2 and Algoma 1/4 to 16 1/2. Both companies face possible strikes at the end of July when steelworkers' contracts expire.

On index, golds gained .11 to 220.22 and base metals slipped .56 to 102.62.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 528,000 shares compared with 529,000 at the same time Tuesday.

B.C. Apple Crop Down Slightly

Canadian apple producers will have bigger crops this year, but increased United States production will reduce apple prices, according to a federal department of agriculture study released today.

The study predicts the total North American 1969 crop will be 3,700,000 tons, 18 per cent larger than in 1968.

With continued favorable weather, the Canadian crop will be slightly more than 500,000 tons, 15 per cent larger than last year and four per cent more than the 1963-1967 average.

The most popular variety of apple will be the McIntosh, at 58 per cent of the crop, followed by the Delicious at 14 per cent.

The study predicts a downward movement of the high apple prices of recent years and reduced returns to the producer because of a 500,000-ton increase in the U.S. crop.

The increased supply likely will result in increased imports from the U.S. and decreased exports to that country. Exports to Britain are expected to increase, but not enough to influence the downward trend significantly.

Usually 15 per cent of the crop is exported.

Crop appraisal by regions:

British Columbia: 114,000 tons, down seven per cent from last year and 28 per cent below the 1963-1967 average, the decrease due to harsh winter weather.

Delicious will be the largest variety, followed by the McIntosh, Winesap and Spartan.

Nova Scotia: 8,400 tons in 1969, nearly 50 per cent above last year's poor crop, consisting mainly of McIntosh, Delicious, Spy and Gravenstein varieties.

New Brunswick: 10,000 tons, slightly more than average, mainly McIntosh and Cortland varieties.

Quebec: Up to 159,000 tons, an increase of 26 per cent and considerably above average. The largest provincial crop, it will consist mainly of McIntosh, followed by Cortland and Lobo.

Ontario: 153,000 tons, up 11 per cent over 1968, consisting of McIntosh and Spys, with Delicious a weak third.

Registration Centres Open For Forthcoming Election

Voter's registration centres are now open throughout the South Okanagan district, preparatory to the forthcoming provincial election Aug. 27.

Bert Manson, registrar of voters, urges all residents who have not yet included their names as eligible voters to do so before Tuesday, July 29. Anyone whose name does not appear on the voter's list after that date will not be eligible to cast a ballot, reminds Mr. Manson.

He also pointed out several polling division changes have been enacted this year, including a new polling centre at the Brenda Mine site. In addition, the old Westbank polling division has been split into two sections now known as the Lakeview and Westbank divisions.

Along Harvey Avenue as the dividing line, Kelowna has also been split into two polling divisions, now known as Kelowna City north and Kelowna City south.

The following is a list of registration centres and locales: Kelowna City, north and south, Kelowna Courthouse; East Kelowna, KLO General store; Glenmore south, Glenmore Road, 1014 Glenmore Drive; Rutland, Rutland Waterworks District, Highway 33; Westbank, Garber's General Store, Westbank; Summerland, Farm and Garden Supply, Victoria Road, Summerland; Joe Rich, Rutland Waterworks District, Highway 33; Beaverhill, Bart's Grocery, 2002 Pandosy St.; Brenda Mines, Bob's Market, Peachland; Lakeview, Bryden's Super Market, Anders Road, Westbank; Peachland, Bob's Market, Peachland; Okanagan Mission, Post Office, Hall's IGA Store, Okanagan Mission; Bear Creek, Kelowna Courthouse.

Total registration for South Okanagan in 1966 was 16,800, compared with 24,300 in the 1969 enumeration listing, with more to be added, says Mr. Manson.

Minor Injuries Reported In One Traffic Accident

Minor injuries only were reported in one of three traffic accidents investigated by the Kelowna RCMP during the night.

The injuries were sustained in a crash between vehicles driven by Ian Fraser and Albert Atkin, both of Kelowna, at the intersection of Glenwood Avenue and Pandosy Street about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

An estimated $500 total damage was done.

Damage totalling $700 was done when a car driven by Adam Arthur Neigum, Rutland, left the road and struck off a telephone pole on Black Mountain Road about 2:10 a.m., today.

A two-car crash about 3:15 p.m. Tuesday, did an estimated $200 damage to vehicles driven by Howard Jones, Moose Jaw, and Steve Anast, Kelowna, when they collided at the intersection of Leon Avenue and Water Street.

SEVERAL THEFTS

Stolen typewriters, wheels, tourist goods and a juvenile shoplifter kept Kelowna detachment RCMP busy Tuesday.

First Steps For New Aquatic

The first tentative steps in building facilities to replace the Aquatic were taken Tuesday night by a committee of interested citizens.

For a project that could run into years, the members representing various city organizations discovered you must ask the right questions before any of the answers are available. About 25 people, including Mayor R. F. Parkinson and two city aldermen, set out to investigate the four "W's" who should build what; when should it be built and where.

DIFFERENT IDEAS

Each of the delegates had a different idea as to what the project should be on spending the $300,000 to $360,000 insurance money from the Aquatic fire. Views on what the new facilities should be, and where, were varied.

Everyone did agree, however, that the planning is going to take a lot longer than the end of August, the original deadline set for the committee's recommendations.

Each of the delegates were given a list of questions and suggestions to take back to his own group for study and ideas.

As the possibilities were tossed around for two hours, several trends became evident, even though no decisions were made. It begins to look as if the new facility will be a multi-

'Magic Mirror' Into Rehearsal

There's more to choosing a queen than simple voting, and a busy group of Regatta workers are discovering just that.

The success and timing of the pageantry involved means a great deal of work, and The Magic Mirror, this year's crowning ceremony is now moving into the rehearsal stage.

Written, produced and directed by Mrs. Kelly Slater, the Magic Mirror will be presented on the floating stage of the Ogo-pogo Pool opening night of Regatta, Aug. 6.

People of all ages are taking part, and members of the cast range from a shy four-year-old to several sophisticated and gracious grandmas and grandpas. The featured attractions, however, are the 12 candidates for this year's Lady of the Lake crown.

In spite of the June 14 fire that destroyed the Aquatic, the stage is nearly re-built; new sets have been designed, costumes are being fitted, dressing rooms mobilized, lighting units as well as a public address system have to be wired and seating arrangements made. The hustle and bustle is all part of Regatta fever.

Temperatures go up and down, the cast claims, but they won't be back to normal until a new queen, the 1969 Lady of the Lake is crowned.

Members of the Magic Mirror cast include these people: King and Queen—Mr. and Mrs. Hildebrand, who have also

ELECTION

B. W. (Bud) Truswell, of the Kelowna Progressive Conservative Association said the only action he can predict his party to take locally is to "fight like hell to stop creeping socialism."

"Whatever else we do we will be out to stop the NDP from getting a foothold anywhere in B.C.," Mr. Truswell said.

"At the present time no action has been taken and we are waiting for some direction from Vancouver . . . John DeWolfe (newly elected leader of the provincial PCs) will be calling the shots on this election," he said.

Mr. Truswell said it is unknown if a candidate will be nominated in the South Okanagan riding.

Earlier this week Mr. DeWolfe said the election came at a bad time for the Conservatives but indicated some candidates would be nominated throughout the province.

Roland Caccioni, president of the New Democratic Party constituency association was unavailable for comment and there have been no indications of when a nominating meeting will be held.

In the North Okanagan riding most parties seem more prepared with Secord and Liberals having fielded candidates.

Minister without portfolio, Mrs. Pat Jordan, will stand again for the Social Credit and real estate agent Robert Neil will carry the Liberal standard.

A spokesman in Vernon said an NDP nominating meeting would probably be held next week.

SEEN and HEARD

There must be a new city in Alberta called "Edmonton," last week city council received a card from two youths who signed their message from Edmonton. Then Thursday, two more young people were seen hitchhiking north along Highway 97 with a sign asking for a ride to the same place.

A youngster in the city is not happy with the usual numbering system; he's got a sweet shirt on that has LXIX on the back, which is 69 in Roman numerals.

Neither rain, nor sleet, nor snow is supposed to stop the mail from going through, but it can delay it, as Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sandberg, Lakeview Heights, discovered last week. The Sandbergs, who took an around-the-world cruise in 1967, received two letters recently which were mailed to them in Aden, where they stopped briefly for fuel when a conflict with the British was in progress. The letters, and one other mailed to London, finally arrived back in Kelowna, after a delay of two and one-half years.

Museum curator, Mrs. John Surtees, has proudly completed an offensive task . . . her first taxidermy job on the donated corpse of a skunk. The odorous undertaking was worth all the unperfumed anguish she says, since the unsociable project will enhance the museum's wildlife exhibit population. The only trouble is, no one can get close enough to appreciate her latest creative efforts.

AT RIGHTS' HEARING

Women Want 'Equal Rates'

The recurring emancipation of equal pay for women performing the same tasks as men was echoed again at the British Columbia Board of Industrial Relations Human Rights Commission hearings held at the Kelowna courthouse Tuesday.

The clarion cry of freedom came from Mrs. Alec Faulds, assistant business agent for the British Columbia Fruit and Vegetable Workers Union, local 1572. She told the almost all-male board that women in the industry were doing the "same work" and putting in the "same hours" as men should get "equal rates."

To prove her point, she cited female fruit packers "putting out four times as many boxes" as their male counterparts and receiving "60 cents per hour" less for the same task. She conceded one justification for the higher male rate was that men had to "truck" the boxes away. Nevertheless, "women were objecting," she declared.

TWO BRIEFS

The human rights brief was one of two presented to the commission from the union delegation headed by business agent, James Currie.

Fielding the thorny contention gingerly, commission chairman, W. H. Sands, related the matter to individual application which required an "individual" study by one of the board members. He described recent amendments to the Human Rights Act as being the "most progressive legislation in Canada," and J. C. Sherlock, director of the Human Rights Act, as the "most outstanding mediator." The question of equality of pay for women, the chairman admitted, was "hard to answer." He added the board had tried to "broaden" the scope of the Human Rights Act with substantial amendments, and it intimated some loopholes still existed.

Such gaps in the Act were described by Mr. Sherlock as "grey areas" requiring further examination by the board. As now enforced, the Act stipulates "no employer and no person acting on his behalf shall discriminate between his male and female employees by paying a female employee at a rate of pay less than the rate of pay paid to a male employee employed by him for the same work or substantially the same work done in the same establishment."

RETIREMENT

Another area of the Act which engendered displeasure with women, said Mrs. Faulds, concerned the delicate matter of retirement age.

"On what basis is age 55 accepted for retirement," she wondered.

"Because it is the accepted age," chairman Sands replied, "although with the qualification, 'it doesn't mean you have to quit working.'"

"Why?" pursued his questioner.

Trying to juggle an answer out of the tricky query, the chairman said the "government accepted age 65 as the age accepted for retirement," and reiterated his previous statement that the late birthday did not necessarily imply an unemployment status. Some people, he added, "contribute their great value to society" past the age of 65.

"I deplore the fact that we are automatically written-off in the Human Rights Act," declared Mrs. Faulds, who suggested the retirement age should be moved up to 85 years.

She also felt someone should champion the cause of those who could not "speak for themselves" on various grievances such as sanitation problems in senior citizen homes, and wondered if the board would consider "some measure of grievance procedure." The condition also applied to "orchard workers who 'didn't have a union.'"

The thought was "impressive," replied chairman Sands, although he cautioned any grievance procedures "might be one-sided." Orchard workers "had to look after themselves," commented Harold Pettman of the Federated Shoppers Association, by "just appealing to the board." He agreed the situation was a "real problem."

"It certainly is a real thought," said chairman Sands. One of the major headaches, he added, was "getting employees to come forward, and in one instance the board had to 'clear the room' in order to hear grievances from employees 'too frightened to talk' in the presence of others."

In his assurances the board would take Mrs. Faulds' suggestions "under consideration," he admitted "we don't know all the answers" and that many parts of the Human Rights Act contained "a lot of new ideas" which could not be evaluated until the legislation had been in force for a longer period of time.

Usual Demand For Pickers Is Expected

The vegetable and sour cherry harvest labor force continues to fill the demand in most areas, with a slight surplus in some regions.

A bulletin from the Canada Manpower branch of the Okanagan-Kootenay District indicates harvesting of vegetable crops continues in the South Okanagan and sour cherry picking is under way in the central and northern areas of the Valley. A good apple crop is predicted this fall, with a heavy labor demand expected early in September.

The sour cherry harvest is progressing in the Kelowna-Rutland regions, with some demand for pickers as the harvest continues into next week. There is a balanced labor supply in the Winfield-Oyama districts where slight activity is present. In the Osoyoos, Oliver, Penticton and Summerland regions, apple thinning is progressing favorably, with only slight labor demand.

Apple thinning is also underway at Keremeos and cabbage harvest is commencing with a balanced labor supply. The Vernon vegetable crop is progressing well, and peppers and cucumbers are being harvested, with mature green tomatos picking scheduled to begin next week. There is a surplus of experienced thinners and inexperienced help.

Court Docket Light Today

A light court docket saw only three men appear before magistrate D. M. White today to plead guilty to motor vehicle offences.

Adam Arthur Neigum, Rutland, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving that resulted in a one-car accident on Black Mountain Road about 2 a.m. today.

He was fined $300 and had his licence suspended for three months.

A one-car accident near Wood Lake brought a charge of driving without due care and attention to George Rozniak, Kelowna, who pleaded guilty and was fined $200.

His licence was suspended for three months.

Using licence plates other than those issued to the car brought a $15 fine to Douglas Wilfred Swain, Kelowna. Swain said he put on the plates to drive his car home after the original plates had been impounded by police.

Shorter Work Week Brief By Fruit, Vegetable Union

An appeal to put British Columbia interior fruit and vegetable workers on the same hourly wage scale as other workers in the province was also made to the Board.

Presenting a single brief for a shorter work week on behalf of the British Columbia Interior Fruit and Vegetable Workers Union, local 1572, James Currie, union business agent, told the commission with the advent of automation and advanced controlled atmosphere storage procedures, which were precipitating an "extended season" and attracting a younger work force, "we don't need a 48 hour week."

Reading from a distributed copy of a written brief to the commission, Mr. Currie cited the economics and research branch of the Canada department of labor booklet covering provisions in major collective agreements in Canadian industries which stipulated that "only one per cent of 181 agreements examined show workers required to work 48 hours per week, while 72 per cent work at 40 hours per week."

He said a survey conducted by the British Columbia Federation of Labor in 1967 indicated 118 agreements had a 40 hour per week clause, 27 agreements had fewer than 40 hours.

Rites Thursday For Bill Bulman

Funeral arrangements have been completed for William Thompson John Bulman, well-known and widely-respected Kelowna businessman, who died Monday at the age of 56 years.

Funeral services will be held from St. Paul's United Church Thursday at 10:30 a.m. with Rev. F. H. Gough officiating. Interment will follow in the Kelowna cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Harold Long, Dr. Harold Henderson, Arthur Jackson, Dr. Walter O'Donnell, Gerald Guichan and Arthur Harrop. Among the honorary pallbearers are Vernon Ellison, Fraser Black, Horace Galbraith, Arthur Geen, Dr. Stanley Underhill, Len Piddock, Percy Tinker and Ken Harding. Day's Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

NIXON'S CALL TO MOON, $2,470

If your last phone bill destroyed the budget again this month, it might be some consolation to know how much President Nixon's phone call to astronaut Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin cost.

By dividing the distance between Kelowna and Calgary to the distance from the earth to moon and multiplying the dividend by the Okanagan exchange rate to Calgary, the person-to-person call from the White House to the surface of the moon is calculated to cost approximately $2,470. That is one-twentieth of the President's salary, even though the call was made during long distance economy calling time.

Short Election Campaign Faces Provincial Voters

And so we are going to have another provincial election. That it was called for this fall is no surprise. However it was a surprise when Premier Bennett called for it in August.

It is no secret that Mr. Bennett's favorite month for elections is May. Circumstances at the time, however, have frequently forced him to select his second choice of election months, September. His third is June.

For him to depart so from his normal pattern does suggest that suddenly some development has persuaded him to move quickly and as quickly as he can. And this is what he has done. He has allowed the minimum number of days the law allows between the calling of an election and the election itself.

It is rare indeed to have a general election in August. The argument has always been that it is a holiday month and people are not interested in politics during the summer months. Further, many people are away and so will not be able to vote—which may be an advantage or a disadvantage to the government, depending on the mood of the people. But late August has another disadvantage: people are getting ready to send their children back to school and do not want to be interrupted by politics.

Still, we are going to have an election on August 27th. Premier Bennett has never been accused of political foolishness, so, presumably, in his eyes there is a very good reason indeed for him selecting that date.

One thing is certain: the campaign will be short and sharp, if not sweet. Five weeks of intensive hot weather politicking. It could well be that never in this province has there been an election with so little public exposure. People will not go to meetings, if there are meetings. Neither will they desert the beaches and the warm moonlight nights to listen to the politicians on TV.

Another thing is certain: it will be a two-way fight between the Secreds and the NDP. Dr. McGee's campaign for Liberal revival has fallen somewhat flat lately and there is little chance of it picking up any material impetus. The Conservative revival under the new leader, Mr. de Wolfe, has not even drawn its first breath and it would be a brave and dedicated person who would offer himself as a candidate for this party in this province at this time.

Mr. Bennett's best friend in recent months has been the new NDP leader, Mr. Berger. The votes naming him leader had hardly been counted when he made a statement advocating an extreme socialistic policy for his party. Quite the opposite to Mr. Strachan, who in recent years had won the respect of many middle-of-the-road voters. Mr. Berger immediately drove these people out of the NDP camp to the only other alternative Social Credit. And there are many of such voters in this province.

Mr. Berger's pronouncements plus the Manitoba election result may have been the spark which decided Mr. Bennett to take time by the forelock and pick August 27th. Probably there are other reasons as well—for instance, he dislikes going into the fourth year of a term in office and generally goes in the third year—but these two points were probably the deciding factor. But why August? Why not early September?

Mr. Bennett certainly will not object to a straight two-party fight between himself and the NDP. On the contrary he will welcome it. He has used the "free enterprise vs. socialism" theme before and he will use it again. We may expect some slogan such as "Me or Chaos" to be used during the next five weeks. It is a situation tailor-made to his liking.

This newspaper has frequently disagreed with the policies and actions of the Bennett government, but in all honesty it does admit that since 1952 Mr. Bennett has given this province very good government, indeed. It is true, as his opponents will say, that he has simply taken advantage of the times. This may be true to a degree, but he did take advantage of the opportunities and he has displayed vision and leadership and the result has been possibly the best provincial government over two decades in Canada.

The election is five weeks away and much can happen in the interval, but as of now, it would seem probable that the voters of this province will recognize the merits of the present government and, conversely, the possible dangers of the unknown opposition, and give the government another mandate on August 27th.

Locally, this newspaper just cannot envisage the voters of South Okanagan turning their backs on their present member in the Legislature. It is true that at times there is irritation because with the local member also being premier, it does seem as though South Okanagan is without a voice in Victoria. However, this is a minor point and there is no reason whatsoever to think that any candidate could replace Mr. Bennett in South Okanagan at this time. Indeed, an acclamation would be in order.

The only danger locally is complacency. No election is a sure thing and it is never safe to take for granted the election of any person. Local supporters of the present government and the local member should remember this on August 27th and, regardless of the weather and whatever excuse there may be, get out and vote.

Can Stand So Much

(Calgary Herald)

Human beings, it appears, can only stand so much.

Consider the behavior of the residents of Ogonosho, Nigeria. Recently they arose in anger against their local king, Olayide Olayode, and the men who advised him.

They beheaded the king. They killed five of his chiefs. They killed one of his wives and one of his sons.

The villagers were rebelling against what they deemed to be the injustices of government. In particular, they were rebelling against high taxes.

There seems to be a message here.

Is anybody listening in Victoria, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Quebec City, Fredericton, Halifax, Charlottetown, St. John's and Ottawa?

Man's First Step On Moon Leads To Limitless Space

Apollo 11 is the 21st U.S. manned space shot. It also is the 21st covered by Howard Benedict, Associated Press aerospace writer who has seen the American space program grow from the early Vanguard series failures to the stunning grandeur of the bird named Eagle. In the following story he looks at where man now is in the space age and where he is headed.

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP) — For eight years the world has been conditioned to the idea that one day man would land on the moon. Now it has happened. The world is excited. But does it really understand what has happened?

By landing on the moon, American astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin have carried man's eternal questing for the unknown to another celestial body. They have opened the limitless frontier of space. That door never will close.

Men cheer the explorers of Apollo 11, but they do not fully grasp the mechanical complexities and the technological and human skills that got them to the moon.

Those who do understand are amazed at the technological progress made in the last decade because of the space program.

When President John F. Kennedy, stung by Russian space exploits, declared the United States in the moon race in 1961, virtually none of the equipment to do the job existed.

MIRACLES BEGAN

The largest, most imaginative government-industry-university team ever assembled for a single project went to work and the miracles began. In eight years, the team, reaching a peak of 420,000 people, put together a remarkable and powerful set of machines that carried the first men to the moon on Sunday, July 20, 1969.

At the start, test rockets exploded, spaceships failed.

But then John Glenn put the United States in the orbital race in 1962. The two-man Gemini program sent the U.S. soaring past the Soviet Union in space in 1968.

Then, the three Apollo 1 astronauts died in a fire that swept through their space cabin during a launch pad test at Cape Kennedy in 1967.

The goal seemed beyond reach.

But the tragedy opened the eyes of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Management, design and inspection techniques were overhauled.

YEAR IS LOST

More than a year was lost. But the results are shown by the record. Since resuming manned launchings last October with Apollo 7, the U.S. has conducted four perfect missions, stepping stones to the grand adventure of Apollo 11.

It was done with things that didn't exist a dozen years ago—sophisticated computers and guidance systems, micro-miniature electronics and new metal alloys.

But history will record that the voyage to the moon belongs to all men. It was truly a triumph of man's indomitable spirit to push to new horizons.

Visionary men like Galileo, Kepler, Newton, Archimedes, Copernicus, Tsiolkovsky, Oberth, Goddard and others from many lands provided the basic knowledge years and centuries ago.

And man dreamed of landing on the moon long before he created nations. So Armstrong and Aldrin went there as representatives of everyone on earth.

CAME IN PEACE

They planted a U.S. flag. But they made it plain they were ambassadors for all nations when they left behind a plaque which said in part: "We came in peace for all mankind."

Man's urge to seek the unknown of space, which began in the spirit of competition may reach maturity in a co-operative effort to build scientific camps on the moon and to use it as a base for exploration of the universe.

Since the Apollo 8 crew circled the moon last Christmas, there has been a thawing of relations between the United States and Russia and there has been more talk of conducting joint space efforts. There was considerable discussion during Apollo 8 commandments during Frank Borman's recent successful visit to Russia.

As Russia's unmanned Luna XV was orbiting the moon, while Apollo 11 headed for its touchdown, Borman telephoned an official of the Soviet National Academy of Sciences seeking information on Luna's course. In unprecedented gesture of co-operation, the Russian cable Borman the exact course of Luna XV and assured it would not interfere with Apollo 11 landing mission.

The three American Apollo crews who have flown to the vicinity of the moon have given man a new perspective of his home planet, whirling a lonely vigil through the solar system, protected from the deadly radiation of the searing sun and the cold of night only by a thin layer of gases trapped in a gravitational field.

MIGHT JOIN TOGETHER

Beyond the veil of gases is a hostile world that many nations may want to conquer together. By working in unison on such a great endeavor as space exploration, the leading nations of the world might join together to improve humanity's lot on earth.

That is one of the hopes engendered by the flight of Apollo 11.

But in the absence of any such co-operation, the United States plans to press on with its own exploration of space.

Nine more lunar landings are planned in the next three years, each to a different area to probe various geological features. These missions gradually will increase man's stay-time on the moon and scientists will be flown on the later trips, taking along flying and roving machines to increase their area of exploration.

These landings will determine the feasibility of establishing an Antarctica-type base on the moon to conduct scientific, medical and engineering experiments.

The future U.S. course in space may be set in September, when President Nixon receives a report from a committee that is to recommend goals for the next decade.

LOOKS TO MARS

The head of the committee, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, suggested during the flight of Apollo 11 that the United States set a goal of landing man on Mars in this century. He is expected to be overruled because space leaders believe it would be inadvisable to set such a commitment until after a series of unmanned probes have been sent to the red planet in the next few years.

Instead, the committee is expected to recommend the mid-1970s launching of a 10- to 12-man space station that could conduct weather, communications, engineering and scientific experiments. By adding segments to the station from time to time, it could accommodate 100 or more men and women.

The station could become the home of specialized industries, using the unique vacuum and weightlessness of space to manufacture such items as perfectly round ball bearings, precision optical lenses and superstrong materials.

The day may come when patients are rocketed to orbiting hospital wards. Some medical experts believe weightlessness might be beneficial in curing certain diseases. Heart, for example, would not have to pump so hard in the absence of gravity.

When U.S.-Soviet co-operation does come, it probably will be directed at a lunar base which would be manned by scientists and engineers of many nations. Considerable spade-work has been done at several international space meetings.

And one day man will fly to the planets and deep into the universe, because that frontier has been opened to them by the courageous men who today fly Apollo 11 back to earth.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

They All Act As If He's Some Kind Of Nut

By DR. GEORGE THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I have allergic asthma, and when I try to explain it to people, they act as if I am some kind of a psychogenic nut. Could you explain why and how this condition exists?

I also realize that some people get rashes from nerves. Could you explain the difference between the two?—Miss M.U.

I don't know how well I can "explain" it, because there's too much of the condition which isn't totally understood. You can show this to people if you think it will do any good.

There are some experts who think that most cases of asthma in young people are related to allergy. I suspect they may be right. If they are, then all such cases are allergic—that is, triggered by allergies. (In older people there are certain types of asthma which are not related to allergy.)

It works something like this: if a person is overly sensitive (that is, allergic) to some food, dust, metal, pollen, flowers, or whatnot, the cells of the body respond by releasing more than the normal amount of a substance called histamine.

This excessive histamine, while it evidently is in some way a protective substance, also has some objectionable results, and leads to various annoying "side effects." It can cause fluids to accumulate—hence swelling. It can irritate tender surfaces, as nose and eyes in hay fever. It can cause hives, or itching, or make areas of the body break out in red blotches.

"This can happen in various parts of the body, and the type of reaction can vary from person to person.

In some, the reaction is swelling of the tissues in the wind-pipe or bronchial tubes. The swelling reduces the air space, so you wheeze. You have asthma.

But if the majority of asthma cases are related to allergy, it is even more true that most are related in some way to nervous tension. The more tense and fearful a patient is of having another attack, the more likely he is to have one.

There is a close, if still considerably mysterious, interplay of our nerves and emotions and our physical bodies. Nerves can, to some extent at least, do things similar to allergic reactions. Some folks break out in a rash from "nerves"; others have headaches, or throw up, or itch.

But trying to explain exactly why isn't so easy. Why do some people blush when embarrassed and others don't? Why do some have heart palpitation and others not? Why do some have headaches, upset stomachs, "gas," or perspire, or have "the trots" due to nerves?

Maybe you'd better not try too hard to "explain" what "allergic asthma" is, except to say that it's asthma due to allergies. Maybe it's the big words that make people act as if you are a psycho—what was that word you used, again?

Uranium 'King' Now Wants Out

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) — Gus Hawker, 64-year-old "King of Uranium," is preparing for the last hurrah of a flamboyant career: retirement.

He wants to leave this boom-and-bust northwestern Saskatchewan town as prosperously as he came to it. That means sucking around until world demand for uranium climbs again and makes him a healthy profit on the mining stocks he owns.

On paper, Hawker is a millionaire. He has a big portfolio of shares and other interests, much of it acquired in early swashbuckling operations that are part of the folklore of the Toronto and Vancouver stock markets, and more acquired in the boom years after he founded Uranium City.

A British blueblood, he first came to Canada to homestead in the Peace River country. But the land required patience and in three years it broke Hawker the farmer.

He became Hawker the traponator of Queen Elizabeth in London.

The next winter he was flooded out and $85,000 worth of material was damaged. That, however, was taken in stride by Hawker, who had become accustomed to losing as well as winning.

He journeyed to California, New York and other states, stocks and dealing with the rich and famous.

Then the uranium market collapsed. Investors panicked, mines were abandoned, stores were closed and Uranium City became a ghost town.

Hawker stayed on, determined to ride out what he thought was a slump. He braved temperatures that reached 60 below zero. And he braved the isolation.

He took over lapsed claims or bought them for pennies from disillusioned owners and he walked the wilderness, chipping away at rocks, convinced the world would again want uranium.

Fur was the only thing active in Uranium City's formerly booming trading centre, and Hawker stuck it out.

Today, he dislikes friendships, advocating that all relationships should be on a business footing. He says he adopted this independent attitude from the Indians. He raised eight children—three of his own and five adopted Indian children.

When demand for uranium began an upsurge two years ago, it strengthened Hawker's hopes.

"I told you so," he says with a grunt and a smile as he tugs at his bow tie.

Hawker says things will prosper again, only this time on a stable basis unlike the "wild-fire" that struck nearly 17 years ago.

He wants to leave Uranium City as a town he not only helped build but resurrected.

And he's promised himself a retirement in a warm climate once his dreams come true.

CANADA'S STORY

Prince Of Wales

Popular In Canada

By BOB ROWMAN

When Prince Charles became Prince of Wales many Canadians must have thought back to the "Roaring Twenties" when the title was held by the present Duke of Windsor. He was the heart-throb of the British Commonwealth in those days, and not only because he was a glamorous bachelor. He had the color, imagination and drive that characterized Prince Philip today, and was held in high regard by Canadians. He served with the Canadian Corps during part of the First World War, and owned a ranch in Alberta for a number of years.

Edward, Prince of Wales, paid several visits to Canada, the first of which was in 1919. He travelled 10,000 miles in two months and said in Montreal that the union of French and English speaking people in Canada was never a matter of mere political convenience. The union of England and Scotland had been in existence for two centuries, and who could doubt that the union in Canada would produce as great, as powerful, as united a nation as Britain had become?

Edward made another memorable trip to Canada in 1927, accompanied by his younger brother George who later became the Duke of Kent and died during Second World War while serving with the RAF. They sailed from Britain on July 23 accompanied by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. It was the first time that a Prime Minister of Britain had visited a Dominion during his term of office.

Actually the Prince of Wales and Prime Minister Baldwin did not get along well together, and it was Baldwin who forced him to abdicate the throne in 1936 when Edward insisted on marrying American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

However, the tour was a great success and there were many parties for the two princes. Their dancing partners were inevitably involved in romantic rumors. It was Canada's Diamond Jubilee, and it was always possible that a diamond could be a girl's best friend!

Edward played a joke on George at Vancouver. He was supposed to speak at a luncheon but on being introduced suddenly asked George to speak instead, and his young brother rose to the occasion nobly.

OTHER EVENTS ON JULY 23: 1627—Lord Baltimore brought the colony to Newfoundland. 1680—LaSalle left Fort Frontenac to search for Henri Tonty. 1767—Land in Prince Edward Island allocated by lottery in Britain. 1840—Act of Union given Royal Assent to become effective in 1841. 1876—Cypress Hills "wolfers" acquitted after trial at Winnipeg. 1892—Manitoba voted for prohibition. 1944—Canadian Army began operations in Normandy as a separate force under General Crerar.

real in the St. Lawrence and was first planned by the French in 1700. A shallow canal at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was dug in 1708 and in 1811, immediately after the union of Upper and Lower Canada, the Welland Canal past Niagara Falls was improved. By 1855, steamers drawing 11 feet of water could move up from the sea to Lake Superior.

1914 — The Austrians sent a war ultimatum to Serbia. 1858 — Britain repealed legal restrictions on Jews.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the Commons of the "murders" of 50 Allied air officers including 35 Canadians at a German prison camp; German robot bombs hit Britain for the ninth straight night; Canadian reinforcements arrived in Italy.

PRESENTED TO MUSEUM

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A silver mug made by Samuel Burt of Boston between 1724 and 1754 has been presented to the New Brunswick museum here by Mrs. Hugh Pelham Winslow of St. Andrews, N.J. Mrs. Winslow said the mug was given to one of her ancestors as a wedding present. The family traces back to Edward Winslow, who came to America on the Mayflower and who served three terms as governor of the colony of Plymouth.

THE Lachine Canal, Canada's first step towards opening up the Great Lakes for salt-water ships, was completed 144 years ago today—in 1825—after four years of work. The Canal bypasses the rapids immediately upstream of Montreal.

Prop-Driven Job

Aids Heartbeat

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A metal pump about the size of a pack of cigarettes is being developed as a promising artificial heart.

Dr. Eugene Bernstein, University of Minnesota surgeon who heads the medical research team, said it will be a "mini-mum of two years" before the artificial heart could be used in a human patient.

The first totally artificial heart was used in Houston, Tex., in April to tide a patient over until a heart transplant could be performed.

The Minnesota invention pumps without a heartbeat and has been successful in early animal trials.

It appears to have overcome the possibility of damage to the fragile red blood cells, a danger which is eminent in other artificial hearts.

The device is unlike the human heart in that a small propeller inside spins to propel the blood.

BIBLE BRIEF

"When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the sick of the paralytic, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee."—Mark 2:5.

Apparently God honors the faith of the believer in the behalf of those who have none. A religion of ritual and works can wear you out. A faith that believes God for anything can lift you up. "Without faith it is impossible to please Him."

MORE POWER TO CLINTON

Second 500,000-volt transmission line from B.C. Hydro's Peace River power project now has been energized as far south as Kelly Lake, near Clinton. The added high-voltage transmission capability means that, for the first time, all of the five 227,000-kilowatt units presently completed at the underground powerplant below W. A. C. Bennett Dam can be operated simultaneously. Anchor tower pictured above is on the 500,000-volt transmission route near Kelly Lake.

Firemen Active In Oyama Area

OYAMA (Special) — The Oyama Volunteer Firemen, with truck and equipment, have responded to four fire alarm calls during the past seven days. Two of the alarms were sent in by well-meaning residents, but on the arrival of the fire department, the blazes proved to be well supervised and under control. One call was a false alarm.

A small forest fire on the property adjacent to Crystal Waters Resort, drew response from the volunteer firemen at 4:45 on Friday. The truck and full crew of men went to quell the blaze, which took an hour and fourteen hundred gallons of water to extinguish. The firemen stayed in the area for more than an hour as a precaution against a further outbreak. The forest service then took over from the local men.

Kelowna Folk Not Goldrushers

RUTLAND (Special) — The lure of the "gold rush days" seems to hold little attraction for Kelowna area residents, a couple recently returned here from an extensive tour of British Columbia discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smithan, who cited restored Barkerville as the highlight of their trip, said the former ghost town seen few people from Kelowna.

"They told us there that very few Kelowna people ever stop in Barkerville," Mrs. Smithan said, "and we had hardly even heard of it."

Bank Worker Is Magician At Night

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Bell may have developed the neatest sleight-of-hand trick in the history of magic.

She steps onto the stage and the bank employee suddenly changes into Elizabeth Warlock, Toronto's only female magician.

Miss Bell-Warlock's specialty is playing Chopin on a piano while a rose bush by her side slowly grows as the music progresses.

She doesn't use two of the more sensational acts in the magicians' handbook—sawing people in half or producing animals out of handkerchiefs.

"If I ever saw anybody in half it would be a man," she said in an interview. "And depending on the way I feel I might not put him together again."

Why no animals? She's allergic.

Her act includes producing a sword stick out of a scarf with a flick of the fingers.

She uses only pure silk scarves and treats them like pure gold.

HOOKED ON MAGIC

"I hate to see magicians use dirty scarves," she said. "Some do and it looks terrible."

Miss Bell-Warlock was hooked on magic as a child in London, England. She tried to copy one of her father's tricks—tying a knot in a scarf and unravelling it with the snap of a finger—and failed.

She made her stage debut at 15 at a magicians' club and went on to become the youngest winner of the British ring shield of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. She later won the Magic Circle Jubilee grand prize in England.

Despite her success, she still says it's harder to be a good female magician than a good male magician—men have more pockets to hide things in.

It's like everything else, she says. "It is always harder for a woman."

ANN LANDERS

Therapist Is Best For Guilty Secret

Dear Ann Landers: I am 44, happily married (for nearly 19 years) and have a great husband and three beautiful children. I made a serious mistake several years ago and now the "mistake" is in his early teens and looks exactly like the other man.

I became aware of the resemblance several years ago but I kept telling myself it was my guilt plus an overactive imagination. Now I can no longer take the situation easily because too many people are beginning to make comments. Just last night a close friend asked me—kiddingly, of course—if I got drunk one night about 15 years ago. (If she only knew how close she came to the truth!)

My conscience is killing me and I find myself brooding by the hour. What shall I do? Please don't suggest prayer. I've tried it and it does nothing for me. If I confess to my husband I'm afraid he might turn against the boy. Help me, please.—Heavy Penalty.

Dear H.P.: Since you were married at the time you made the "serious mistake," there's an outside chance that your husband is the father of the child. Cling to this possibility. Slim though it may be, it's a real one.

If you feel you must tell someone, select a therapist who is trained and paid to listen. A confession of this kind is not for the ears of a friend or relative.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Alive and Well and Living in Decatur," the man whose wife went to bed in underwear and ankle socks for 17 years. I think I married that loon's twin brother.

I'm 42 years of age; attractive and neat. I don't sleep in ankle socks or face cream or hair curlers either. We've been married eighteen years and for the past five, he has looked my way once every two months (when I'm lucky). In between times he pats my cheek or fakes a heat wave ten minutes before we are expecting ten dinner guests.

What baffles me is that this man is interested in sex—but only on the printed page. You should see the garbage he brings into our home! I'm one of those abnormal cats who gets no kicks from looking at dirty pictures. Please tell me what is wrong and what I can do about it. In the meantime I hope nobody comes along because I'm ripe and ready for a lover. Sign me—Half Alive in Quebec.

Dear Q.: Grown men who would rather look at pictures than enjoy the real thing are adolescent. Pictures make no demands. They offer no challenge. Anybody can look. Paste this column on the TV screen so your husband will be sure to see it. If that lover comes along he won't be able to say you didn't warn him.

Woman Takes Long Time To Finish Book On Family

MONTREAL (CP) — Pearl Packard is a vibrant 82-year-old Montrealer who has just completed an 87,000-word book that took 4½ years to write "because I wrote it all in longhand."

"And that doesn't include the 1,000 words that I tossed out," she says.

Mrs. Packard, sitting in a bookshop with a dozen or more copies of The Reluctant Pioneer in front of her, carefully opened each one and signed the fly leaf. She wore a brilliant red dress and her fine white hair was caught up under a black feather.

"I am the wife of the late Frank L. Packard," she said, leaning forward.

"I am not the widow of anybody. I hate that phrase."

Her husband, a well-known writer of adventure stories, died 25 years ago and she confesses she had never given thought to writing a novel because she was too busy being a housewife, "if that's what you call keeping house."

STARTED IN CUPBOARD
"Do you want me to tell you how I first had the idea of writing the book?"

"I was housecleaning a cupboard and took down a great box of McIntyre data."

"I took one look at that vast amount of letters and old clippings and realized that my children and grandchildren and their children were going to say, 'We're not going to read all that stuff.'"

The Reluctant Pioneer tells the story of Mrs. Packard's grandparents, John and Jane McIntyre, and their pioneering adventures during the last century.

"My story is told through Jane's eyes. You get tired of reading about men and their adventures. The woman is always the secondary character."

The author says that when she saw the pile of clippings in the cupboard box she realized the chronicles were of sufficient importance to be set out in what she calls readable form.

She has already published a short story called Tea in Peking and plans to write another one soon detailing her extensive travelling adventures through Australia, New Zealand, the South Seas and South Africa.

On one of the Packard's trips to the South Seas, her husband was made honorary chief of a tribe in Samoa.

FOND OF CHILDREN
Mrs. Packard says it's also high time she learned how to type and do shorthand.

She admits to possessing an overwhelming fondness for children which was translated into what she calls her "one great hobby"—puppetry.

"I used to make up stories and give puppet shows for children but that was well over 10 years ago."

"I must tell you about one of the most touching experiences in my life. It might be a bit mushy for you, but I'll tell you nevertheless."

RISE OF WOMEN'S HEMLINES
Reflected In Store Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — The rise of women's hemlines and the rebirth of man the peacock are reflected in bare figures on retail business published Tuesday.

The pace-setters for increased sales in 326 department stores across Canada during the first five months of this year were women's and girls' hosiery and men's clothing.

Figures showing the value of sales in 40 different departments of the big stores are published by Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Hosiery sales, pushed to new heights by the fashion for shorter skirts, advanced by more than 34 per cent to a retail value of $19,595,000 in the first five months from $14,600,000 in the same stretch of 1968.

Men retogged in department stores at a rate of $41,434,000 in the five months, an advance of almost 33 per cent from the $31,167,000 spent in the 1968 period.

Total sales by the 326 stores, owned by 42 companies, increased by almost 15 per cent to $923,920,000 in the first five months from $804,402,000 in the 1968 period. In May, total sales went up by more than 21 per cent to $225,689,000 from a year earlier.

The only department among 40 showing a decline was furs, where sales fell by more than eight per cent to $3,909,000 in the first five months.

The statistics suggest that the first thought among department-store customers after fitting themselves out in the latest styles was to capture their new splendor on film.

Biggest sales increase after hosiery and men's clothing is recorded for photographic equipment and supplies.

Sales in the photo departments increased by more than 31 per cent to $13,034,000 in the first five months from $9,912,000 in the 1968 period.

FEAR OF HAVING RH BABIES
Is Substantially Reduced

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Alvin Zipursky of Hamilton says advanced methods of treatment for mothers with an Rh negative blood factor "have almost eradicated the disease and substantially reduced the fear of having Rh babies."

One of the latest methods involves an intra-uterine transfusion in which a needle is injected into the abdomen of an unborn baby. The process can be performed after a fetus has been in the womb for about six months.

Before development of the treatment, a woman with Rh negative blood married to a man with Rh positive blood had a 60-per-cent chance of carrying an Rh positive child.

When the woman became pregnant with the first baby some of this positive blood from the baby frequently entered the bloodstream of the mother. The system of the mother promptly formed antibodies—a line of defence—against the "foreign" positive blood.

When the mother became pregnant with her second child—who most probably might be an Rh positive baby too—the antibodies created by her system carried over to the baby and began to destroy the second child's red blood cells, causing brain damage, jaundice or even death to the infant.

GIVE GAMMA GLOBULIN
"What happens now," Dr. Zipursky explained "is that about 72 hours after an Rh negative mother gives birth to her first Rh positive baby she receives a dose of gamma globulin with anti-Rh positive antibodies, and this destroys any immunity her system might have built up. This procedure should be carried out after the birth of each baby."

Another form of protection for a baby, should the mother not have received this gamma globulin injection, is to give the baby an immediate Rh negative blood transfusion. Within a few months any antibodies that existed at birth are destroyed while the baby's system begins to produce Rh positive blood free of any antibodies.

The doctor was interviewed before addressing about 1,000 delegates gathered for the Seventh International Congress of Clinical Pathology.

MONASTIC LOOK BUILDING UP
On Italian Fashion Market

ROME (Reuters) — Italian fashion, suitably robed and cowed, seems heading for the convent as if penitent for the orgy of nudity last season.

The monastic look has been building up for the last four days of the Rome fall and winter collections with dark, voluminous calf-length dresses, flat shapeless bodies, long sleeves and prim, high necklines.

The transparent dresses and dizzy décolletés of the spring-summer collections virtually have vanished.

Pino Lancetti put the seal on the cloistered line Monday night with long evening dresses cut exactly like nuns' habits, long loose, wide-sleeved and cinched at the waist with a cord.

COVERS NECK
With them, and almost all his evening clothes, came long fine scarves plausibly wrapped round the head and thrown behind the shoulders. They came in dark somber tones—black, purple, deep bottle green and dark brown—and the models deepened the mood by gliding silently and soberly as if in meditation.

The Fontana Sisters' version of the monastic line was a monk's cowl which covered everything from the shoulder up except for the face itself.

They appeared in a bright orange plasticized material with an orange and white waterproof pant suit, in warm wools over day clothes and in fine shimmering fabrics over evening gowns.

Lancetti kicked off with the Chicago gangster look—big broad-shouldered, double-breasted great-suits worn calf-length over long fairly wide pants and trilby hats pulled down over the face.

Jackets, of varying lengths, had military style shoulder-taps, highstanding collars and neat rows of buttons. Scarves went with almost everything.

Lancetti followed the oriental trend for some evening dresses but with a difference—he had a whole series of silk gowns in exotic derivations of Indian designs, with huge borders or Arabesques and strange oriental patterns.

Like almost all his clothes they came in combinations of purple, turquoise, bottle green and pink.

The Fontana collection was full of belts, buttons, boots and beads. It had big brass buttons on almost every garment in sight.

FOUR FAMILIES
In Long Move

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Moving a family from here even to Vancouver or Halifax isn't much of a problem nowadays, but to Dacca, East Pakistan—now there's a problem.

Four families now tackling the shift are those of Frank Finch, James Waddell, Paul Weihe and Robert Birchall, who will be consultants with the East Pakistan Water and Power Development Authority.

Mr. and Mrs. Birchall have an edge on moving—they recently returned from Pakistan after a two-year stay.

Mrs. Birchall has found some minor problems in moving.

New appliances have to be bought as Pakistan's voltage is 220 while Canada's is 110.

Toilet paper can cost up to $1.25 a roll.

—Even though a male launderer is cheap, the women plan to buy washing machines, since the way the servants clean clothes—rubbing them on a rock—shortens a shirt's life span.

—Their houses' stone floors have to be washed daily.

—Christmas presents are a real problem.

JUST SOCIETY
Is Formed
By 2 Mothers

TORONTO (CP) — An organization formed to help the poor battle the bureaucracy today opened the first of three planned offices—in the basement of an east-end church.

The organization, called Just Society, has been formed by two welfare mothers who hope it can provide direction for poor persons, document grievances and find a permanent solution to the problems of the poor.

The organizers, Dore Power and Suzanne Polgar, hope to open two additional offices as soon as possible.

"There's probably half a million poor in Toronto, and we can't possibly help them all individually," said Mrs. Polgar. "We'll take the documentation to the agencies involved in hopes of getting a fair, long-term solution for everyone."

Mrs. Power said the Just Society is prepared to help anyone who feels he has been wrongfully refused welfare or pensions or if they feel such payments are inadequate.

Their office will remain open until 9 p.m. Monday to Saturday. Ultimately, it is hoped to maintain an answering service 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The Just Society has two types of members—the poor, who pay a membership fee of 50 cents if they can afford it, and associates, or non-poor, who pay $2 and act as advisers.

BIRTH CONTROL
Advice Free
Urges Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told Congress recently he wants to make available, within five years, free birth control advice to American women of child-bearing age with low incomes.

In a special message, Nixon estimated that nearly 5,000,000 U.S. women "do not now have adequate access to family planning assistance."

Proposing an expansion and reorganization of federal family planning services, Nixon said: "Clearly, in no circumstances will the activities associated with our pursuit of this goal be allowed to infringe on the religious convictions or personal wishes and freedom of any to impair the absolute right of all individuals to have such matters of conscience respected by public authorities."

Nixon sketched out a rather bleak picture of the potential impact of the global population explosion if governments, private agencies and the United Nations fail to begin dealing now with anticipated problems.

In the United States alone, the population will increase nearly 100,000,000 by the year 2,000, he predicted.

"If we were to accommodate the full 10,000,000 persons in new communities, we would have to build a new city of 250,000 persons each month from now until the end of the century."

He asked Congress to create a commission on population growth and the American future.

The panel would study population trends, canvass governmental resources needed to deal with a larger population, and study ways in which population growth may affect activities of federal, state and local government.

RIDE 'N' SWIM

Russia, Poland Oppose British Germ War Plan

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia and Poland today made it clear they do not favor the line taken by a proposed British convention to ban germ warfare, which would not cover chemical weapons.

Soviet delegate Alexei Roshchin told the 19-nation disarmament conference chemical and biological warfare should be handled together by strengthening the 1925 Geneva Protocol banning gas and germ warfare.

Polish delegate Antoni Czarowski introduced a working paper calling on the United Nations to urge all states to adhere to the protocol, which the U.S. and many other UN members have not ratified.

U.S. delegate James Leonard was less than enthusiastic about the British draft, which would ban manufacture, possession or use of biological weapons.

He said the U.S. welcomed all such initiatives, but "we are not clear in our own minds whether it would be desirable to conclude a separate measure relating only to biological weapons."

WENT TOO FAR
But U.S. officials said the Polish working paper went further than they could accept. The paper called for an affirmation by UN members that the 1925 protocol applies to the use in war of all chemical and biological agents, including tear gas.

The Polish proposal is based on the UN experts report on chemical and germ warfare, which came out early in July and on Secretary-General U Thant's accompanying recommendations.

It also called for agreement to halt the development, production and stockpiling of chemical and biological weapons and their elimination from arsenals.

Roshchin said a ban on biological weapons without a simultaneous ban on chemical means of warfare would be a mistake, as the production and storage of chemical weapons would not be covered by any ban.

The Geneva Protocol covers only gas and germ warfare, not the stockpiling of weapons with which to wage it.

SPEED UP RACE?

"The question arises whether the prohibition of biological weapons alone will not accelerate the chemical arms race. No one can deny that the danger of chemical weapons being used is indeed more real," Roshchin said.

Later Leonard also repeated American opposition to a comprehensive ban on military installations on the seabed as proposed by Russia which calls for a ban on fixing only nuclear arms and other weapons of mass destruction to the ocean floor.

Leonard said the U.S. did not think there were non-nuclear military uses of the seabed that could trigger off an arms race in the next few years.

Psychiatric Tests Advised To Keep Bad Drivers Carless

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Judge William F. Woodliffe of Sudbury suggests psychiatric examinations could be used to keep poor drivers off Ontario roads.

Writing in Chitty's Law Journal, a publication for lawyers and judges, Judge Woodliffe says motorists who collect 10 demerit points for traffic violations in the province should be forced to see a psychiatrist.

If they fail a psychiatrist examination, the transport department should have the power to suspend their licences for as long as necessary.

The judge also says nobody should be given a driver's licence until he has had a thorough medical examination.

Demerit points—from two to seven—are issued for various driving offences. When a driver has accumulated nine points, the transport department interviews him to decide whether his licence should be suspended. At 15 points, the licence is suspended automatically.

Deputy Transport Minister W. G. MacInnes said in an interview the judge's proposal is "unworkable."

"If he will show us where to get the doctors and the money to do it, we'll be glad to," "Twenty-five thousand motorists reach nine points every year," he said. "And that would be an awful lot of psychiatry."

Judge Woodliffe also says in the article that judges should be able to banish drivers from behind the wheel if they are convicted of criminal negligence, impaired driving or other serious offences.

Nell D. Gaskin, general manager of the Ontario Motor League, said the problem was that not enough drivers are taught to drive properly before their licences are issued.

He said the OML advocates compulsory training on approved courses for all licence applicants—and re-examination every five years together with eye tests and physical examinations.

Retreat By El Salvador Sought At OAS Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latin American foreign ministers will meet today to consider what steps to take against El Salvador for refusing to pull its troops out of Honduras.

The council of the Organization of American States decided late Tuesday to convene the foreign ministers' meeting after El Salvador refused to heed an OAS peace formula calling for withdrawal of its forces from Honduras soil by Tuesday night.

The ministers are expected to meet in Washington this week-end. Details of the session, the first since 1964, were being worked out today.

The Salvadorean government refused to pull back its troops from Honduras until given firm guarantees for the safety of about 300,000 Salvadorean immigrants living in Honduras, restorations of homes and property to some 15,000 who fled back to El Salvador, and prosecution of Hondurans who allegedly persecuted the immigrants.

Reports from the war front said Salvadorean troops remained in battle positions. But OAS peace negotiator Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa of Nicaragua reported from Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, that both armies were honoring the ceasefire called by the OAS last Friday.

An OAS spokesman in Washington said there appeared to be enough sentiment against El Salvador to put through sanctions against her. But it seemed likely that the ministers would begin with a call for withdrawal from San Salvador of the ambassadors of the Latin American nations in the hope that this warning would prompt the Salvadoreans to pull out their troops.

One OAS official said that if the Salvadorean government complied "with the withdrawal order, it risked being accused of treason by its own people."

"You have to understand," he said, "that the government is under terrific pressure not to back down as a matter of national honor."

In San Salvador, President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez said his troops would not abandon their positions in Honduras and the fight would go on, "because I think what we are doing will benefit everyone everywhere."

He spoke to about 5,000 women gathered in front of his residence to protest the OAS actions.

OAS Secretary-General Galo Plaza said in Washington that OAS civilian and military observer teams were in "full operation" in both El Salvador and Honduras, the civilians to check on treatment of Salvadoreans living in Honduras and the military to keep watch on observance of the ceasefire.

Foreign Voluntary Groups Help Vietnamese Civilians

SAIGON (Reuters) — Foreign voluntary agencies ranging from the Salvation Army to the YMCA are helping to alleviate the suffering to civilians caused by the Vietnam war.

The American buildup and the intensification of the war in the last five years has been matched by a rise in the number of humanitarian relief organizations serving here.

In 1964 the number could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Today, 31 agencies are registered with the South Vietnam government.

West Germany, apart from the United States, supplies most of the volunteers and resources for this humanitarian work.

The agencies are largely dependent on Americans for transport and other assistance caused under the category of "logistic support."

Nevertheless, volunteers from such countries as Canada, New Zealand, Britain, West Germany, the Philippines, Switzerland and India might just as easily find themselves giving help or medical aid to pro-Viet Cong villagers as to those who support the Americans.

Three-quarters of the agencies' resources are devoted to refugee relief and social welfare work.

PROVIDE OTHER HELP

In addition to providing humanitarian social services, many agencies give training in farming, community development, education and public health.

Their contributions to these and other projects will total nearly $20,000,000 this year.

More than 500 foreigners and 2,000 Vietnamese now are working fulltime in South Vietnam for the 31 agencies.

Nearly one-third of all the non-American foreigners are West Germans.

Some of the organizations have only one foreign representative in Saigon—for example, the YMCA and the foster parents plan, both represented by Canadians.

ON THE PRAIRIES Jockey-ess Will Appeal

CALGARY (CP) — Viola Thomas, 31, of Calgary, Alberta's only woman jockey, was fined $200 and costs when she was found guilty of having care and control of a motor vehicle while impaired. Lawyers for Miss Thomas said they plan an appeal.

LONG WALK

CALGARY (CP) — Bernard Rioux of Quebec City walked into Calgary Tuesday on his way to the 1970 World's Fair in Osaka, Japan—a journey he hopes to complete mostly on foot. Rioux, 27, has already covered 3,746 miles since he started in July, 1968, and when he gets to Vancouver in September, hopes to reach Japan by boat.

SEASON OPENS

CHURCHILL, (CP) — The shipping season of this northern Manitoba port opened officially Tuesday and the first ship is expected here Friday night. The Hudson Bay season lasts until Oct. 15.

MORTGAGING FUTURE?

SASKATOON, Sask. (CP) — Roy Atkinson, National Farmers Union president, said Tuesday Prime Minister Trudeau's plans to inject $250,000,000 into the prairie wheat economy are solely an advance on farm-stored grain and amount to mortgaging the future. He suggested the government should buy the grain outright.

Prominent Britons Jailed After Park Confrontation

LONDON (AP) — A local dispute over a sixpence increase in a park fee became a national issue today because six prominent citizens who conducted a protest were jailed for the weekend, then taken to court in handcuffs.

The case made the front page in nearly all Britain's major newspapers. Four editorials ridiculed the police for treating like hardened criminals, citizens convicted of nothing.

Irate members of the House of Commons prepared to demand an explanation from Home Secretary James Callaghan in Commons.

Six parents in Havant, Hampshire, held the sitdown demonstration to protest an increase to a shilling (13 cents) from sixpence in the admission fee to the local children's park. The fee was raised because of damage that vandals did to the park.

The six were arrested Saturday after they refused to promise that they would not make a further protest. The police said they had violated a 600-year-old law, and charged them with conduct likely to endanger the peace.

The five men who demonstrated were handcuffed. The woman was not, but she was also a local magistrate.

Crux's Lawyer Receives Yet Another Adjournment

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP) — A lawyer for Vancouver financier A. G. Duncan Crux today asked for and received yet another adjournment of the start of a hearing on whether Crux should be extradited to Canada.

The adjournment, to next Friday, was granted after lawyer Paul Adderley said he was not prepared to go on because of the sheer volume of depositions covering evidence produced in Vancouver against Crux. Crux, 63, faces 21 charges of theft and fraud brought by the British Columbia government.

Magistrate John Bally granted the adjournment and Crux remained free on $75,000 bail. The adjournment came as a surprise to representatives of the Canadian government who are ready after nine previous adjournments.

Nassau lawyer Patrick Toohey, after conferring with lawyers for Crux, said he would not oppose the request for the further adjournment.

Crux was arrested here June 3 while in the Bahamas seeking to prevent liquidation of his North Andros Development Co. Monday, Crux lost a legal battle to save the Bahamas subsidiaries of his Commonwealth Group of companies from liquidation.

Chief Justice Sir Ralph Campbell, in a deferred judgment, rejected a civil action by Crux seeking reversal of a superior court order for liquidation of North Andros Development. The firm was placed in liquidation in January after the main corporation, the Commonwealth Group, was put into the hands of an official receiver in British Columbia.

Here from Vancouver to take part in the extradition proceedings are R. D. Plommer, senior counsel for the B.C. attorney-general's department, criminal lawyer E. A. Alexander, chartered accountant Don Gardner and RCMP Insp. Donald K. Wilson.

China Verges On Boom

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China now seems on the verge of a minor trade boom following an announcement Monday by President Nixon that the United States will ease certain travel and trade restrictions with Peking.

The announcement said that starting Wednesday American tourists will be allowed to take $100 worth of goods of Chinese origin into the U.S. with them. It also permitted certain groups of people, such as students, congressmen and newspaper men, to visit the Chinese mainland.

The $100 allowance to buy Chinese goods could benefit China by as much as $9,000,000 by the end of the year in tourist spending in Hong Kong alone, if every American tourist visiting this British colony spends it all.

"I think it would be fallacious to assume it will be this much, but there will certainly be a certain amount of spending on Chinese goods," a spokesman for the U.S. consulate said today.

About 15,000 American tourists a month have visited Hong Kong so far this year, and tourists' officials expect the annual total to be about 190,000. Last year, 158,051 tourists visited the colony from the U.S. and about 220,000 American servicemen came here on leave.

Although Hong Kong is one of the world's major shopping centres, Americans have been limited to buying non-Chinese goods, issued with a government-licensed certificate of origin.

Principal beneficiaries of the wider spending power will be Hong Kong's numerous, well-stocked department stores selling only Chinese-made goods. These Chinese emporiums carry a wide range of articles previously banned from import into the U.S., such as jade, ivory, Chinese antiques, jewelry and silk, at prices far lower than retail non-Communist stores.

WEATHER FORECAST

Almost all heavily-populated areas of Canada are expected to have below-normal temperatures and heavy precipitation during the next 30-days, according to the long-range forecast of the United States weather bureau. Northern areas of the western provinces will have normal temperatures and precipitation. The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. Other normal temperatures (precipitations): New York 76 (4.5); New Orleans 81 (6.0); San Francisco 63 (0).

Birth Rate Shows Decline To Lowest Ever Recorded

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's birth rate last year was the lowest in its recorded history with a ratio of 17.6 births for every 1,000 of the population.

The number of births in the country last year dropped to 364,310, the lowest number since 1948, Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

In 1967, there were 370,894 births for a birth-rate of 18.2 per 1,000.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island alone among the provinces recorded increased numbers of births last year. The birth rates increased only marginally in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island.

Quebec recorded the lowest birth rate per 1,000 population with 16.3 and Newfoundland the highest at 25.3 among the provinces. The Quebec rate in 1967 was 17.3 and in Newfoundland 25.7.

The Prince Edward Island birth rate increased to 19.1 from 18.3 the year before. Nova Scotia's dropped to 18.1 from 18.9 and New Brunswick's fell to 18.6 from 19.9.

The Ontario rate dropped to 17.3 from 17.8, Manitoba's edged ahead to 17.9 from 17.8, Saskatchewan's to 19 from 18.8, while Alberta's rate fell to 19.8 from 20.6 and British Columbia's slipped a point to 16.8 from 16.9.

Number of births by provinces:

Newfoundland, 12,820, down from 12,844 in 1967; Prince Edward Island, 2,105, up from 2,047; Nova Scotia, 13,774, down from 14,312; New Brunswick, 11,607, down from 12,353.

Quebec, 96,622, down from 101,471 in 1967; Ontario, 126,257, down from 127,509.

Manitoba, up to 14,724 from 17,180 in 1967; Saskatchewan, up to 18,197 from 17,993; Alberta, down to 30,149 from 30,691; British Columbia up to 33,687 from 32,899.

The Northwest Territories recorded 1,298 births last year, an increase from 1,210 the year before, and Yukon births increased to 385 from 370. Birth rates per 1,000 were 41.9, up from 41.7, in the Northwest Territories and 24.7, down from 25.7, in The Yukon.

Union Nationale 'Stands Firm' And No Poll Seen By Bertrand

QUEBEC (CP) — The Union Nationale government will not seek an election until at least 1970 and it will operate as "one united party," Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said.

Emerging from a day-long party caucus in a suburban motel, Mr. Bertrand told reporters there would be no Quebec election this fall.

But the Bertrand forces and the supporters of Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal polarized after last month's leadership convention, he said.

There was growing speculation that the government is plagued by internal division and an economic squeeze in Quebec, had no desire for an electoral contest.

Governments in Canada generally face the voters every four years, although their terms are for five years.

Mr. Bertrand also said he will shuffle his cabinet before the end of July. There have been unofficial reports that Finance Minister Paul Dozois, 61, plans to retire for health reasons.

Standing in the 108-seat national assembly: Union Nationale 55, Liberals 48, Independent 3, vacant 2.

Mr. Bertrand told reporters there will be byelections in at least two ridings this fall. Currently vacant are Trois-Rivières, formerly held by Yves Gagnier, minister of financial institutions, and Vaudreuil-Soulanges, formerly held by Paul Gervin-Lajoie, former Liberal education minister.

The split in the Union Nationale which Mr. Bertrand has been working to heal is between nationalist and federalist forces.

Mr. Cardinal's platform at the June leadership convention—a greater tolerance of separatist elements and a get-tough attitude with Ottawa on constitutional questions— attracted many delegate votes.

OK IN SPACE But It's A No-No On Earth

HOUSTON (AP) — No, children. Drinking milk from a spoon is a no-no, even if astronaut Michael Collins does it. And that big yellow circle in the sky is the moon—even if mission control thinks it's earth.

And if you pick up a hundred or so pounds of rocks and put them in your closet like Neil Armstrong, mommy will spank. And if you try to float a slice of bread like Edwin Aldrin did it will fall smack-dab on its ham spread.

In other words, Tuesday night's exercise in educational television from that big Apollo studio in the sky, has to be put in proper context.

Opening shot—a pale moon 61,000 miles back.

"We see earth in the centre of the screen," said Charles Duke on the ground, talking to the spacecraft. "It's very hazy at this time."

DEAD SILENCE!

There was silence from the spacecraft, an unbroken silence.

"Believe that's where we just came from," said Aldrin finally. Embarrassed silence from the ground.

"It's, huh?" said Duke.

"Well, I'm really looking at a bad, at a bad screen here. Stand by one minute." Then: "Hey, you're right."

Said Aldrin: "It's not bad enough not finding the right landing spot—you haven't even got the right planet."

And Duke: "I'll never live that one down."

Armstrong showed his treasure chest, lots of rocks from the moon. They were neatly packaged and stowed away in compartments.

"As soon as we got on to the recovery ship, I'm sure these boxes will immediately be transferred and delivery started to the lunar receiving laboratory," Armstrong said.

Then came the episode of the spoon and water.

"I was gonna show you how you drink water out of a spoon," said Collins. "I'm afraid I've filled the spoon too full and if I'm not careful I'm gonna spill water right over the sides."

WATER FLOATS

"I'll tell you what, I'll just turn this one over and get rid of the water and start all over again, okay?"

The water just stayed. Collins pushed it off with an index finger. Still the water stayed, a big blob. Collins blew at it. It floated off in big droplets and Collins fielded them with his mouth.

Aldrin spun a piece of bread coated with him spread while he did another demonstration of weightlessness with the can that the spread came out of. The bread kept splashing and the can stayed up.

"That's how it went, until a final, familiar shot of earth. 'Have a picture now, Houston?' Collins asked playfully.

"That's affirmative," said Duke. "I refuse to bite on this one though, you tell us."

"Okay," said Collins. "This should be getting larger and, as it is, it's the place we're coming home to."

A few minutes later, the ground got in its own looks. "Your television pictures attracted a lot of interest," the word went up. "They were shown live throughout just about the whole world. And so we're expecting hundreds of telephone calls from mothers all over the world claiming that their youngsters are trying to drink milk from spoons, thanks to you, Mike."

"I take it all back," Collins said.

Farmers Sizzled Mentally During Visit From Trudeau

By JANE BECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the heart of a bubbling economy, the financial fortunes of Canada's 300,000-odd grain farmers are barely simmering. But last week the farmers sizzled mentally as they massed in Saskatchewan to confront Prime Minister Trudeau and complain of declining wheat sales and prices.

Nearly everyone could sympathize. For while prices and wages across Canada generally have been rising steeply—the consumer price index was up one per cent from the previous month in June—one-quarter as much as the total rise in 1968—income realized by farmers last year was 3.5 per cent below 1967.

The farmers cleared about $1,591,700,000 after income taxes and expenses, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics calculates, compared with $1,649,200,000 in 1967. The 1968 figure was nearly nine per cent below the record high of $1,742,500,000 in 1966.

Lambert, chairman of the Toronto-Dominion Bank. The most notable effect of the higher bank rate was in six-month government treasury bills, which were yielding 7.76 per cent by the end of the week, up .28 per cent from Monday. Banks and trust companies may soon have to increase the seven per cent interest-rate now paid on large commercial deposits, some observers said.

ENTERS SPACE AGE
The government apparently does not want to miss any business boats—or rather space-ships—as science continues its headlong rush forward. Soon after the three American astronauts blasted off to the moon last Wednesday, Air Canada announced it had accepted 62 bookings for moon flights.

The government-owned airline said it could quote no fares, although one writer estimated they could eventually be in the $10,000 range—return. Nor could Air Canada say what type of equipment would be used, although it did suggest that drinks may have to be served through a tube.

EXPENSES SPIRAL

At the same time, farm expenses have been mounting steadily—by nearly 12 per cent since 1966. Last year they reached a record $3,338,400,000, nearly four per cent more than in 1967, leaving farmers in a tightening cost-price vise.

When they learned last week that the federal government will not guarantee the floor price of $1.98½ a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat, as set by the International Grain Agreement last year, the farmers' rancour broke bounds.

Government subsidies are unlikely, but farm groups called for some sort of floor price to be paid by the government to make up the difference between the price their wheat will bring on the world market and what the Canadian Wheat Board had undertaken to pay under the IGA.

If world prices drop by even 25 cents a bushel it will mean another $100,000,000 drop in farmers' income this year.

INCREASES BANK RATE
Meanwhile the Bank of Canada increase in the bank rate to an unprecedented eight per cent last week put new pressure on interest rates generally.

By the weekend the chartered banks had not yet made the usual following move of raising their prime lending rates, now at another historic high of 8½ per cent. In fact, Finance Minister Edgar Benson said more than once he hopes they will not do so.

But some bankers and economists say they wonder how they can do anything else. "We must consider whether we are properly reflecting the financial mood of the country if we don't move," said A. T.

Steelmen Say: Beer's Best!

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP)—Forging steel is hot and heavy work and beer is the best drink to slake a steelworker's thirst, the British Columbia liquor inquiry commission was told Monday.

A brief from Local 651 of the United Steelworkers of America offers to the commission and called for entertainment in beer parlors with music that "soothes the savage soul."

The brief concerned itself mainly with beer drinking because it was a between-shift pastime of steelworkers, but it also offered some suggestions on hours of sale.

James Patterson, financial secretary of the local, said miners in Kimberley thought pubs in out-of-the-way towns without present outlets should be open Sunday starting at 1:30 p.m.

"This is allowed in Quebec and for the sake of unity, we should not deny them the same pleasures in B.C.," he said.

Mr. Patterson said the miners would like to see beer and wine sold in grocery stores and that opening hours be changed to allow beer parlors to close at 2 a.m. every day except Sunday when a Saturday midnight closing would be effective.

The steelworkers also want beer parlors to offer hot meals and smaller beer glasses that don't spill easily.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW
Thursday will be an excellent period in which to present new ideas and make plans for launching unique enterprises, even though results of your efforts may not be immediate. Just one admonition, however: Be modest in advancing opinions. Don't use steamroller tactics.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that you are now facing better prospects than you have had in some time and that you should, therefore, capitalize on every available opportunity if you would gain all the benefits possible during the next year.

As for specifics: As of Sept. 1, you will enter an excellent planetary cycle governing career matters. These good influences will get progressively better throughout October and November, and some unexpected help from either business or personal friends in October will step up your chances for advancement considerably. You will have to do your part, of course, but this shouldn't be difficult in the face of the "lift" this outside aid will give you. Next good periods for making progress, career-wise: January, March, June and next July.

On the financial score, stars promise an excellent 3-month cycle for increasing your assets, beginning on Oct. 1. Gains will accrue from increased earnings and/or sound investments, but it will be important not to speculate—especially in mid-October and during the first week of November. Mid-December will be an excellent time in which to launch long-range financial programs. Expect no immediate returns, however. Late March should bring first results of your endeavors along this line, and further gains are star-promised in May and June.

Along personal lines: Most propitious periods for romance: August, late November, December, February, May and June; for travel: August, October, January and late September could prove exceptionally profitable.

Saanich Blanks Kelowna In Early Babe Ruth Play

Three years just may have been a little too long a wait for Kelowna's Babe Ruth all-stars.

The former Western Canadian Little League champions of three years ago, with virtually the same roster now as in 1966, were humbled 8-0 Tuesday by an impressive Vancouver Island entry from Saanich in one of three first round games played in the opening day of the provincial Babe Ruth baseball championships in Kelowna's Elk's Stadium.

In other games, Coquitlam defeated Nanaimo 4-1 and Trail edged Inter-Community of Vancouver 5-4.

Pitcher Glen Campbell and outfielder Rick Hurdus were a two-man wrecking crew for Saanich, easily the class team of the tournament, though taking nothing from a North Vancouver squad who were the only club not scheduled Tuesday. North Vancouver is expected to be one of the top teams as it probably has the most productive minor league program in B.C.

Campbell blanked Kelowna's all-stars on just three hits while teammate Hurdus supplied all the offense needed with a first inning run-producing double and a towering three-run homer in a five-run third inning.

Kelowna mounted only one significant scoring attempt but an unsuccessful squeeze attempt cut the rally short. Campbell, a big lefthander, was in control throughout the contest and struck out 11 Kelowna batters enroute to the victory.

Hurdus was mainly responsible for knocking Kelowna's starter Greg Fox from the mound in the third inning, driving in the game's first four runs. His home run, a 340-foot drive, cleared the centre field fence.

Saanich now faces Trail at 8 p.m., while Kelowna, in the loser's bracket of the double knockout tourney, waits until Thursday to play the winner of the Nanaimo-Inter Community game, scheduled for today at 5:30.

Saanich 105 000 2-8 9-1 Kelowna 000 000 0-0 3-5 Glen Campbell and Randy of the province's best high school basketball players though only 15, took over as the catcher and his outstanding play at that position was chiefly responsible for staving off a determined Coquitlam late inning rally.

Today's schedule pits North Vancouver against Coquitlam in the opener at 2 p.m. The contest will be followed at 5:30 by a Nanaimo and Inter Community contest and at 8 p.m. by powerful Saanich and Trail.

SUE FRANCE is a former member of the Ogoopo Swim Club. In the four years she competed with the club, she helped Kelowna win one provincial summer swim club title. Now she is trying to help win the club another title as coach, above. Attending Simon Fraser University, 20-year-old Sue hopes to teach physical education when she graduates. (Courier Photo)

Coaching A Full-Time Job For The Girl Who Came Back

By ALJE KAMMINGA
Courier Sports Editor

Sue France came back. But the hair tonic people aren't nearly as happy about the situation as members and officials of the Ogoopo Swim Club.

Sue is a former member of the club who came back last year to coach the latest contingent of swimmers. She is back again this year with new ideas and probably the best-run swimming program Kelowna has ever seen.

Sue is a 20-year-old university student whose parents live at 350 Francis Avenue. She is currently waiting to start her third year of physical education at Simon Fraser University in Vancouver.

Coaching is her summer job, one she tackles with grim dedication.

MORE SPORTS PAGES 18, 19

"I have no choice, really," she explains. "The job of coaching is a full-time effort seven days a week. I started early in May, will finish late in August and will probably get about two days off before I go back to university."

"I have no complaints, though. I enjoy the job and I enjoy the opportunity to work with youngsters."

AVERAGE DAY
An average day for Sue starts at about 8 a.m. when she teaches a class of about 15 12-year-olds at the Ogoopo Pool. After the first class, she goes home for paper work—several hours of paper work.

"We're trying to expand our swimming program, giving the swimmers more chances to compete," she says. "This means I have to contact other swimming clubs in the province and elsewhere."

"Besides that, I have a card index on each of the swimmers that has to be kept up so they can check their personal times."

SPORTS IN BRIEF

North Vancouver Provincial Champs

North Vancouver defeated Vernon 9-3 Sunday to win the provincial senior Babe Ruth baseball crown being held in Kamloops.

An extra game was needed in the three-day tourney as the two clubs finished regular play with one loss each.

The winners will represent British Columbia in the Pacific Zone finals which start Friday in San Francisco. Kelowna was also entered in the B.C. tourney.

Mike Bate of Kelowna retained his first place standing atop the limited hydroplane standings during the past weekend with a first place finish at Lac La Hache. Mike defeated six boats in the race.

Ron Derrickson of Kelowna finished second over-all. Both will likely go to Seattle for races this weekend.

Ted Urness, Saskatchewan Roughriders' all-Canadian centre for the last four years who last month announced his retirement from professional football, has agreed to rejoin the Western Football Conference Club.

Urness, 32, who first joined the Riders in 1963, earlier had said that he couldn't fit a football career with a new position he has with a tractor company. Today the club said this difficulty has been ironed out.

The six-foot-three, 250-pound veteran probably will see his first action when the Roughriders open their regular season Aug. 3, in a game here against British Columbia Lions.

British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference Monday placed flanker Howard Taylor of New Mexico State University on waivers, reducing the Lions' imports to 23.

The Leos now have a roster of 45 after starting with 70 when training camp opened June 21. The number of imports must be cut to 14 by July 30, when B.C. meets Calgary here for the first regular-season WFC game.

Local All-Stars Lose B.C. Final

Kelowna won three of five games in the 13-year-old Babe Ruth provincial championships in Vancouver last weekend, but fell at least two victories short of the B.C. title.

But in spite of the apparent failure, the Kelowna squad came up with the best record of any local representative in three years. The two previous teams were eliminated from the playoffs in straight games.

The locals started poorly in the double-knockout event, losing their first game 3-2 to the North Vancouver Nationals. Allen Nelson was the losing pitcher while Peter Mason got credit for the victory.

The All-Stars knocked Port Alberni Valley out of the competition in the second game, walking off with a 9-4 victory. David Wiens was the winning pitcher.

Nelson joined with Gene Weninger and Tim Hoffman to lead the hitting brigade. Nelson smacked out a triple, Weninger added a double and Hoffman drove in two runs with a single.

WIN AGAIN
Kelowna came right back in the third game to defeat hard-hitting New Westminster 6-3. Nelson picked up the victory on the mound. Leading the way at bat was Bob Koenig who knocked in two runs with a single and got on base twice through walks.

The All-Stars looked like they might recover from their initial loss and grab a berth in the finals when they defeated Vancouver Inter-Community 7-3 for their third straight win. Wiens was again the winning pitcher, going the distance for Kelowna.

Brian August chipped in with Nelson and Weninger to give Wiens and the All-Stars all the hitting help they needed.

Kelowna's good fortune ran out in their fifth game, when they again met the Vancouver Nationals. Vancouver pitcher Bruce Malcolm was more than Kelowna could handle and they managed only two hits in dropping a 4-1 decision.

Nelson was the loser but he was equally effective in giving up only two hits. Errors cost the All-Stars, however, and they could not rally against the hard-throwing of Malcolm. Only Jack Knoobiluizen and August could collect hits off the Vancouver ace.

Vancouver went on to the finals but were defeated 6-5 by Saanich in the championship game. Saanich won all three of their games in the tourney.

A bit of consolation, besides the third place finish, came when Kelowna was named the most sportsmanlike team in the tourney.

McLain Returns From Detroit To Start In All-Star Game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Denny McLain is flying back from Detroit to throw the first pitch in today's rescheduled all-star game.

But President Nixon won't be on hand.

That set of circumstances came about Tuesday night when a storm forced postponement of the all-star game until 1:45 p.m. EDT, today, weather permitting.

McLain expects to be on hand when it's time to throw the first pitch before an expected 45,000. He flew to Detroit to keep an 8 a.m. dental appointment to have his teeth capped.

Nixon left for Thursday's splashdown of Apollo 11 in the Pacific and was replaced by Vice-President Spiro Agnew.

The postponement placed a squeeze on the National League team and Chicago Cubs.

"I want to play in the daytime anyway," Banks said.

"Here we are two guys 30 years old and we'll be able to play in the daytime," Banks said to Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants. "You know—we'll be able to see the ball better in the daytime."

MORE RAIN FORECAST
A daytime game was no certainty. The weather forecast for today called for showers later in the afternoon. An early rain could delay the start.

No plans have been made beyond today. If the game cannot be played, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the decision over whether to postpone the game to another date or cancel it would be made at that time.

The postponement Tuesday night was the first in all-star history.

game in Boston was washed out after nine innings of a 1-1 tie. McLain was scheduled to be opposed by Steve Carlton as the American League sought to end a six-game losing streak.

They were counting heavily on a home-hitting lineup that included Oakland Athletics' Reggie Jackson and Washington Senators' Frank Howard.

Jackson is the major league home-run leader with 37 while Howard has 34. The eight AL starters had a total of 179 homers to 105 for the eight NL starters.

NL manager Red Schoendienst was expected to follow Carlton on the mound with either San Francisco's Juan Marichal or Bill Singer of Los Angeles Dodgers.

AL manager Mayo Smith said his second pitcher would be Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees. Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians or John (Blue Moon) Odom of Oakland.

Rain Hurts NL Catcher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The postponement of the all-star baseball game because of rain meant trouble for Pie, Johnny Bench today.

It rained up to the expiration time of the 24-hour pass Bench got to take his place as the starting catcher in the National League lineup.

The Cincinnati Reds receiver set immediately to phoning his army reserve unit in Virginia for an extension to play in today's game.

A Great Party But It Rained

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball's finest hour turned out to be one of its darkest and dampest.

A jazz band with a red-haired, long-legged female trumpet player struck up Dixie tunes. Congressmen, ambassadors and other assorted VIPs belted cocktails and gorged themselves in barbecue and hamburger while young waiters and waitresses in the garb of the 1890s passed among them with a seemingly endless supply.

It was baseball's 100th birthday party, and it was a dilly.

President Nixon had given a reception at the White House a few hours earlier and had told his cheering guests he planned to come out to the ball park and stay for the entire game.

From the White House, baseball moved to a huge, circus-like tent near Robert F. Kennedy Stadium for a pre-game blast.

Then the rains came.

STARTED AS SHOWER

It started out as a shower, then grew into a downpour and finally into a thunder-and-lightning cloudburst that turned happy celebrants into a soaked, dishevelled, frustrated lot.

Few made it to the ball park where 45,000 were expected.

The pre-game party had been arranged for about 2,000 selected guests—congressmen, government officials, baseball brass, the press and friends. The crowd grew to a packed 3,000.

Food and drink were plentiful. Spirits were gay. Waiters wore straw skimmers and had badges which said, "Happy Birthday, Baseball."

The rain started pouring in buckets. Rivulets ran through the tent. Everybody got wet—and, at one stage, frightened. "Everyone is asked to leave the tents immediately and go into the armory," one of the authorities announced. "We are afraid the tent may collapse."

Bowie Kuhn, baseball commissioner, announced the game was off until Wednesday.

"It can't be the same," said one disappointed fan, expressing the sentiments of all.

Casey, Dick Get Together

WASHINGTON (AP) — "How's the banking business?" President Richard Nixon asked Casey Stengel.

"Fine," replied Stengel.

"Even with those high interest rates?" the United States president prodded.

"If a banker can't make money in these times, he oughtn't be in the profession," said the former manager of New York Yankees and Mets, voted Monday baseball's greatest living manager.

A Detroit sports editor handed the president a baseball, already nearly covered with autographs, and requested: "Would you sign this for me, please, mister president? Right here, under Denny McLain."

"Nobody should be above Denny McLain," the president said, signing.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, presented President Nixon with a gold life-time pass to major league baseball games and Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner, gave him a lavish gold trophy about 12 inches high.

"This is the same trophy we gave the men selected as the greatest players of all time," the commissioner said. "We give it to you as baseball's No. 1 fan."

BAY AREA BOMBER - - By Alan Mayer

RACING DIDN'T GET ITS FIRST TRIPLE CROWN WINNER SINCE 1948, AND THE NATIONAL LEAGUE MAY NOT GET ITS FIRST SINCE 1937, BUT IF YOU'RE INTERESTED IN A LONG SHOT (6:04), THE DEFENDING HOMER AND RBI CHAMP IS DOING WELL IN BOTH CATEGORIES.

Canadian Open Starts Thursday

MONTREAL (CP)—The pre-tournament gallery birds may be in for a preview today as three of the top players in this year's Canadian Open compete in the final practice round.

The $125,000 tournament over 72 holes starts Thursday on Pinegrove Country Club at nearby St. Luc with first-place prize money of $25,000.

The top three finishers in this year's British Open—England's Tony Jacklin, New Zealand's Bob Charles and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina—agreed to instill some fireworks into the final practice round by forming a threesome.

All are rated as pre-tournament favorites along with former Canadian Open champion Bill Casper.

One member of the Commonwealth delegation who will be absent is Australia's Bruce Devlin.

DEVLIN ILL

Devlin notified tournament organizers Tuesday he was being admitted to hospital in Miami for hemorrhoid surgery and will remain four or five days.

Dave Rees of Wales, a veteran member of Britain's Ryder Cup team over the years, is on hand for the event.

Charles, a lefty, is the defending champion, while Casper won the title in 1967.

Charles said he carded a 68-under-par 68 in a practice round Tuesday with a string of six birdies and only one bad hole—the 190-yard-par-three sixth where he went one-over.

"I blew that one and three-putted it," the quiet New Zealander said, predicting a 12-under-par 276 total will win the tournament.

Rees, who played De Vicenzo, called the Argentinian to win. However, Senor Roberto didn't agree, even though Casper's assessment was the same as the Welshman's.

"That Billy, he says that in every tournament and then he beats me every time," De Vicenzo said with a grin.

He said he is recovering from a stomach ailment.

AGREES ON SCORE

De Vicenzo also called 276 as a winning score, while Rees was more conservative with a 280 estimate.

All of the tourney pros questioned agreed on one thing—the ninth hole must be shortened. Apparently, the complaints reached the ears of tournament chairman Dave Shea who said the hole will be played from the back of the front tee. That means that the distance now will measure 400 yards instead of 465.

Charles was the only one to disclose an actual score for Tuesday's practice round.

Casper went 27 holes on Tuesday, making the yardage notation on his scorecard as he progressed. He'll go back over the same route and check his original calculations before Thursday's opening round.

In deference to Casper's much-publicized allergies, Pinegrove president Irving Garberg disclosed the layout hadn't been sprayed with insecticides for more than three weeks.

Toronto's George Knudson, and Al Balding, rated Canada's top hopes, both made brief appearances Tuesday.

Thursday's starting field of 152 will be cut to the 70 lowest and ties after Friday's second round.

Bombers Unhappy With John; 'Expected A Great Deal More'

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Dave Raimy affair still is unresolved in the camp of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and coach Joe Zaleski has dropped the first hint that confidence in his young quarterback, John Schneider, may be waning.

"We're not at all happy with John's performance thus far," said Zaleski at a workout Tuesday night. "We expected a great deal more after last season."

Trade talk is rumored with the name of Tom Wilkinson, an understudy to Toronto's Wally Grier, entering most of the discussions.

Bombers admit there is at least one deal in the wind and some talk was supposed to have taken place between Winnipeg and Toronto during the Bombers' recent exhibition swing.

Zaleski stuck with Schneider in his rookie season last year confident that he would develop into an efficient quarterback.

Asked whether Schneider would start in the Western Football Conference opener against Edmonton next Tuesday, Zaleski replied:

"I can't make that statement, but that doesn't mean he won't."

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Whether or not Raimy is on the block following his recent spat with Zaleski, is not clear.

Raimy, the volatile halfback in his fifth season with the Bombers, was sent home Sunday from Hamilton following a verbal clash with Schneider. He wasn't at Tuesday's workout either.

"He hasn't been suspended, and he hasn't been fined," said Bomber general manager Earl Lunsford.

"Coach Zaleski believed it would be better for all concerned if Dave didn't work out with the team until he (Zaleski) had made a decision."

About his action in sending Raimy home Sunday, Zaleski said:

"It wasn't anything to do with Schneider, although the two did have words. Last week it was a halfback, the week before that a lineman. I guess it just beat me too far and I lost my temper."

Ottawa Beats Saskatchewan

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders used the breaks and a saturation passing attack to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 39-8 in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday night.

Neither team managed to muster a strong ground game.

Ottawa's best running came from halfback Vic Washington. His best run was a third-quarter gallop from the Ottawa goal-line to the Saskatchewan 37.

Washington carried nine times for a total of 110 yards.

End Ron Francis led the Saskatchewan attack, gaining 100 yards on three passes, including a fourth-quarter touchdown.

Ottawa held a 10-0 lead early in the second quarter after two field goals by Don Sutherland.

Barry Arden, an Ottawa defensive back, set up the first Ottawa touchdown midway in the second quarter grabbing a fumble by Saskatchewan rookie quarterback Bubba Wyche on the Saskatchewan 45 yard line.

WORLD PROFESSIONALISM MARCHES

Amateur Hockey Contest 'Doomed'

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The separate goals of amateurism and professionalism in hockey, until now a Canadian problem, are making their presence felt internationally.

"And unless the International Ice Hockey Federation moves to counteract them, stopping them at the source by helping Canada, world amateur competition is doomed," says Frans Hendrichs of The Netherlands.

He contends that Canada's rift between amateurism and professionalism is a malignant cancer that will spread through the IIHF, lessening its power to the point of destruction.

Hendrichs, a well-known television commentator in Europe and an avid National Hockey League fan, sees the IIHF as a crumbling ruler of world hockey, already shaken by the onward march of the professionals.

"The problem is evident in Canada and must be stopped there, first by granting an open world competition which will enable that country to focus the attention of her youth on amateur gains before professional ones.

"But Europeans think differently. If Montreal Canadiens were a European team, owned by David Molson as they are now, the owner would simply tear up their hockey contracts and place each player under contract to the brewery.

"This would make them amateurs, working for a legitimate business and playing hockey in their spare time without contracts."

Hendrichs says the IIHF, policed by its president, J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne of London, England, has spelled its ruin by refusing to help Canada through its attempts to control all hockey.

He was referring to the IIHF's regulations that prevent an amateur team from playing a professional team outside the amateur team's country.

Ahearne contends that this guarantees the IIHF a percentage of any professional-amateur game receipts. It also makes it impossible for a promoter to arrange a tournament involving amateurs from more than one country against professionals.

It means, basically, that an IIHF member would be subject to suspension if a team from that country played in another country against a professional team or played host to a tournament that involved a professional team and one from an outside country.

This is the strangle grip that Hendrichs feels must be loosened before professionalism moves in from an unguarded flank, welcomed by the European public to stifle the IIHF as it has the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association previously.

"First one country, maybe Czechoslovakia or Russia, will find that world amateur glory is not the ultimate," Hendrichs says. "Slowly one country will turn professional, ignoring the world tournament because it is anti-climactic. Other countries are bound to follow."

"It is inevitable. It is a demand being made by the Europeans who are slowly beginning to realize that they are not competing against the best in the world."

His belief, a popular one, is that the athlete can only improve by competing against superior competition.

"Now, the top European countries have nowhere to go for this," he says.

"Don't be fooled by the Russians' boast that they are as good as the NHL teams. I talked to Anatoli Tarasov while he was still in charge of the Russian national team. Sure, he made statements, but he knew his team was not the best."

You see we Europeans have all assessed the differences. We use movie films to compare. The Russians, the best amateurs in the world, are as good in stickhandling and manoeuvring.

"The films show that the Russians and all Europeans cannot skate as fast as the NHL players on the straight dashes. The NHL players simply pull away from them."

"The other two main differences are in the shooting and goaltending. The NHL player's shot is faster, harder by far. The NHL goaltenders are quicker, more agile and with faster reflexes because of the harder shots they must handle."

ON WRONG TRACK

Hendrichs' solution to the march of professionalism is simple.

"Only by allowing an open tournament, which in turn will allow Canada to play her best, will the world amateur championship continue to hold prestige. It takes everything back to basics, doesn't it? It makes the world championship the ultimate aim of amateurs by which they stake a claim to a professional contract."

"Amateurism must be the stepping stone to professionalism or all is lost. In Canada, the youth do not aim at an amateur goal. They aim at a professional career."

"Now the IIHF is trying to keep its finger in too many pies. It wants to control world hockey. Like the CAHA they should only be the governing body of amateur hockey, a step before professionalism.

"This thinking is wrong and, although Canada lost the vote for open competition, many European countries realize the principle is wrong."

"The ones that did not support her were selfish, thinking only of their own interests, while Canada was only trying to help hockey the way it always has."

Canada was allowed nine minor-professional players and as many reinstated amateurs as necessary for the 1970 world championship in Winnipeg and Montreal.

Hockey Canada, a combination of professional, amateur and government interests, is not satisfied with the alternative. The proposal for an open tournament in 1971 will be placed before the IIHF's annual council meeting in Winnipeg next March.

A denial by the IIHF would almost certainly mean withdrawal by Canada from the 1971 world tournament, one informed source says.
